

Board looks into windows

By CAROLYN PLOTTS

Replacement of the windows at the airport occupied most of the conversation at Monday night's Norton City/County airport board meeting.

Board members agreed that new windows would be more energy efficient, weather tight and keep ice from forming inside. However, the issue of new windows was tabled until more information could be gathered.

City Manager Rob Lawson made a recommendation to the board regarding signage at the airport. It was agreed the sign should read "Norton City/County Airport".

Airport manager Delvis Miller informed the board that the wind sock had to be moved and a paint striper was needed to take care of some markings. He said a 6 inch stripe was needed to mark the new tie downs and to mark a center line.

Mr. Lawson advised Mr. Miller that the city crew would take care of the work, which brought up the subject of keeping track of all the man-hours, plus equipment expense, the city expends at the airport. Mr. Lawson agreed to monitor the work, acknowledging it was the best way to determine the actual operating expense.

Mr. Lawson gave a positive financial report. He said, "We got through the year okay. We're on the right track." He added that the city and county expenses were being split 50/50.

Board member Jim Williams reported that after all the bills were paid, there was an ending balance of $4,944.23. He added that proceeds from an $8,537.48 Certificate of Deposit would be used to cover the expense of the non-directional beacon that has been ordered. The beacon is expected to be delivered in a few weeks.

Mr. Williams also said that people with hangars have been sent letters advising them of their share of the cost of the new concrete.

The class of Leadership Norton 2004 met last Thursday for a day focusing on agriculture. One of the stops was the new feedlot under construction at the Chris and Tyler Harting farm, eight miles south and one and one-half mile east of Norton. The group inspected a liquid waste lagoon that will be part of the system.

LEADERSHIP AND COOPERATION HAVE RESULTED IN:

County Auditor said that of the counties he audits we went from the worst county financially to the best the last few years

- Lowered mill levy on county budget 7 mills $273,380.00 for 2005 budget to help residents in tough economic times.
- The county, city, and businesses together laid a new and larger water line to the industrial park east of Norton for better fire protection and lower insurance rates.
- The county built a bridge in southwest part of the city and the city chip sealed some asphalt roads for the county for more efficient use of equipment that each governmental agency already owned.
- The just completed new concrete taxiway from runway to the terminal at the airport was an essential improvement for economic development and was a state-county-city joint venture.
- The county provided monetary support for the new sewer line to Whispering Pines Assisted Living Center which provided 15 new jobs for the community.
- The commissioners arranged for Revenue Bonds for part of the Norton County Hospital renovation project that was recently completed.
- The county and city reached a new airport agreement to more efficiently use tax payer dollars.
- The county and city are currently engaged in preliminary talks for hiring an economic director.
- 90 miles of new roads were built in the county, 120 miles of roads were reshaped with millings applied and 21 new bridges were built in Norton County.
- Revolving Economic Development Loans were made in the last 3 years to: (1.) Miltech (2.) Town and Country Kitchen (3.) Mortensen Computers (4.) Hot Shots Photography (5.) White Fields Coffee House (6.) Oak Shop in Almena
- County provided assistance to Natoma Corporation and Miltech which resulted in the addition of 20 new jobs for the community.
- Funds were contributed for park improvements in Norton, Almena and Lenora.
- The county acted as a Grant Host for District #2 Rural Fire Department's recent application for a Community Block Development Grant for a new fire truck.
- The Commissioners were effective in securing a state permit for Norton County's Solid Waste Disposal Site for resident's use for the next 35 years.
