WILSONVILLE NEWS

By VELMA HOLTZE and LAURIE LAWS

Gary, Karen and Alicia Brown drove to Lincoln on Thursday to make the acquaintance of their first grandchild and nephew, Riley Dean, who was born June 29 weighing 7 pounds 10 ounces Ben and Mandy Brown are the proud parents. The little fellow arrived on his parent's wedding anniversary. Paternal great-grandparents are Dean and Margaret Brown.

Chester and Kathie Francis are the proud grandparents of another granddaughter, Hannah Katherine, daughter of Suree and Bob Schilz of Milford. This little one weighed 6 pounds 5 ounces on June 23 at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Lincoln. Paternal grandparent are Lonnie and Pam Schilz and great-grandmother all of McCook. Suree will be taking a short maternity leave from the Medical Clinic in Friend, Neb., where she is a Physician's Assistant. Grandma Kathie returned home July 1 after spending a week in the Schilz home.

The women who gathered at the home of Velma Holtze on Friday afternoon shared flower stories and memories, played several flower games and heard several inspirational flower articles written by Addie Shreve and Marjorie Holmes. Adeline Ballou was the recipient of the door prize, but the other women shared in the winning of the games so all took home a flower remembrance of the afternoon. Homemade ice cream and cake climaxed the afternoon.

For the most part, farmers have been surprised as they are cutting their wheat. Even the older farmers do not remember such good test weights. Very few have reported below 60 and most have been 62-63 with some testing 64 and 65+. It has been very dry and yields are averaging 40-50 bushels. The elevator in Wilsonville reported on Monday they had taken in 230,000 bushels of wheat and thought the harvest was probably 70 percent complete.

During the little rain shower southwest of town late Friday afternoon, lightning struck a haystack belonging to the Summers. The fire department from Lebanon answered the call but could not save it. There have also been more wheat fires this year. Ahlemeyers had a wheat fire southeast of town on Friday and David and Randy Brown had a wheat fire last week north of Hendley.

Several families ate dinner together at the Baptist-Christian Church following the worship service. This enabled people to get to visit a little while with former residents, Carla and Nancy Wolfe and daughters. The Wolfes are visiting Carl's parents from Holdrege and Nancy's mother from McCook as well as other family members and friends. Special music for the service was a duet by Janet Trospen and Connie Holliday.

Darrel Palmer has been hospitalized again in McCook, after being home from the Omaha Hospital a little over a month.

A number of Colorado families who own homes in this community came to spend the July 4 weekend here. Some even came several days earlier to give them more time to work on their properties. One home is getting a fresh coat of white paint while some are taking care of their yards. What a great difference it makes.

Sunday proved to be an exceptionally cool and damp day until shortly after dinner. The Lord seemed to be saying, "Men, you just as well go to church. You're not going to cut wheat until later today."

Little Jake Hoagland of Hastings is spending a day or two with his grandparents, Kenneth and Carla Holtze. He came especially to see how these combines and all this wheat harvest equipment works. He is fascinated with all kinds of farm machinery.

Karen Laffler of Kellspall, Mont., spent several days this past week in the Lelia and Chris Lang home. Ella Wilson was a Saturday morning caller as well as Mike and Roxy Lang and their grandson, Logan Lang from Hastings. Later in the day Lelia, Karen and Chris went to the Mike Lang home for lunch. Karen drove to Omaha on Sunday where she enplaned for home.

The Daryl Browns entertained at Sunday supper for their daughter, Brittany's 17th birthday. Attending were grandparents Helen McChesney, Cambridge and Dean and Margaret Brown, brother, Luke Brown of Kearney, sister, Samantha and Ryon Jones and family of Cambridge and several school friends from Cambridge.
