Football coach brags on team to Norton Lions club

At their Sept. 6 meeting the Norton Lions Club listened as Norton Blue Jay head football coach Bruce Graber apologized for his team's opening performance against the Oakley Plainsmen. "We were bad with a capital 'B,'" said Mr. Graber about the 24-3 loss. Mr. Graber was, however, quick to point out how proud he was of the players and he promised that the fans would see a different team in their next match-up against Plainville. He said the team had the best practice ever after watching the game film. (The Blue Jays ended up defeating Plainville Sept. 9, 29-8) "We'll always be the smaller team," Coach Graber said. "But there are other ways to win besides the physical. "This is a team. It is close and cohesive and they like playing the game." He said he was proud to be the team's coach. He said the night before the Oakley game he had written a letter to the football program at a high school in Gulf Port, Miss. He wanted his team, to somehow connect with what that team had been through in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. When he asked if any of the boys wanted to write a message to the

It's time to invite teachers to supper

September is the official new year as far as teachers are concerned.

Marriage to a teacher for 20 years ingrained this basic principle into even my bookkeeper's brain. When the air starts to feel crisp in the mornings I still want new hairbows, new shoes and a plaid dress with a bow in the back. Seen anyone go to school dressed like that lately?

Now it's a backpack, $100 sneakers and a T shirt that shows your tummy button. When we came to Norton in 1960 the high school faculty always had an ice cream and cake social the evening after the first day of school so we could all get acquainted.

Avola Travis would make seven different cakes and the older faculty members would show up with big freezers full of homemade ice cream. Our first social was the night I met Doris Ballard. Faculties were close friends then and socialized a lot together. Before we left, full of cake and larupin' good ice cream, Doris had invited us and another new couple to dinner the following Sunday evening. Her home was small and cozy, packed with overflowing bookshelves, good reading lamps above deep, comfortable chairs and classic art. That home was everything I wanted mine to become. So was her hospitality and her festive dinner served on bright Mexican pottery with a serape for a tablecloth and Spanish music on the record player. The recipe she served sure brings back happy memories.

Can you imagine anything simpler or better? Invite a new teacher to dinner this weekend and get acquainted. You'll be glad you did... and so will they. MY MAMA SAID: Never attempt to "put on the dog" 'cause it'll sure turn right 'round and bite you.

DORIS BALLARD'S TAMALES

First thing cook the Crust: Cook and stir together for 45 minutes one cup old-fashioned yellow cornmeal and four cups of salted water until thickened into mush. Set aside to cool while you make the filling:

Filling: Chop and fry one slice of bacon, one large Spanish onion and one green pepper in a heavy skillet. Remove and set aside while you brown two pounds of ground beef in the drippings, crumbling it up well. When crisp, drain off fat, add a large can of chopped tomatoes, a small can of chopped green chilies and the onion, pepper, bacon mixture. Add salt and chili powder to taste and a good splash of Tabasco sauce. Simmer along until tomato moisture is all absorbed and mixture is thick.

Preparation: Stir up the mush well, spread half in the bottom of a well-greased glass or pottery 9-inch-by-13-inch pan. Pour filling in, spreading to corners. Add a layer of shredded pepperjack cheese, about a cup should cover it. Dollop big blobs of the remaining mush over all but do not "connect the dots". Sprinkle with paprika and bake at 375-degree for 30 minutes until cornmeal is well browned. Must be served bubbling hot.

This was accompanied by a big green salad; dessert was fresh apricots caramelized in brown sugar and served over custard.
