Volunteer time earns good food

Are you a 4-H leader or a soccer coach? Do you sing in your church choir, pick up trash on your daily walk, or make casseroles for community dinners? There are many more ways to volunteer, but if you do any of these, you can participate in Heartland SHARE — the community-minded food network.

Heartland SHARE rewards volunteer service in your community with substantial savings on good, wholesome food. With SHARE, you can feed your family several nutritious meals — or sponsor a SHARE for a family in need.

There are three easy steps: 1) Contact Ermalea Mason, 877-3098 or Norton Senior Center, 877-5352. 2) Complete your volunteer service during the month. and 3) Pick up your SHARE this month on April 22 at the Senior Center. Distribution begins at 8 a.m. Food stamps are accepted. Please order by Thursday.

The April Heartland SHARE food package contains 1 pound of deli sliced turkey breast, 1 pound of bratwursts, 9 ounces of Canadian bacon, 12 ounces of lean ham steak, 15 ounces of chicken breast strips for fajitas, carrots, onions, potatoes, zucchini, salad mix, apples, oranges, grapefruit, pears, and an 18 ounce box of breakfast cereal oats.

For $20.50, plus two hours of volunteer work, you can receive all of the food listed. You can order as many shares as you want. You can also order a meat only package (first five items) for $11 plus one additional volunteer hour. There is no limit to the number of meat only specials you can order.

After you purchase a SHARE you can order as many April Specials as you want.

Special No. 1 costs $17, plus one hour of volunteer service. It contains 4, 4 ounce ground beef patties, 4, 4 ounce boneless chicken breasts, 4, 5 ounce boneless pork chops, 4, 6 ounce ribeye steaks. All are individually wrapped and boxed.

Special No. 2 costs $13, plus one hour of volunteer service. It contains chicken cordon bleu: 8, 6 ounce chicken breasts stuffed with Canadian bacon and cheese. All are individually wrapped and boxed.

Cold snap brings out soup recipes

Just as we were ready to put away our oven recipes and soup kettles along comes a cold spring wind and rainstorm that convinced me there was still time to share another soup concoction from our travels. A rainy day is often brightened by the aroma of soup drifting through the house.

While in Singapore we tried to partake of as many unusual foods as possible and so one day ended up at a small Japanese food court booth for lunch. We had soup and some kind of little filled muffin they called Japanese pancakes. Now I never learned to make those but after a little persuasion I got into the kitchen to watch the cook make this soup. My recipe has been for years scribbled on the back of a Rotary program and may have lost a bit in translation, but to substitute for the bean threads (Saifun). In a pinch, you can try very thin rice pasta if necessary, although it will not cook to the same texture or consistency.

the best of my knowledge, this is the savoury soup we were served, recreated by the vivid although non-verbal cook's demonstration, LeRoy's chemistry, and the best I can do with American seasonings. Now, if some sweet soul would show me how to make those red bean stuffed muffins.

Realizing some of the ingredients are hard to get, I've given alternatives where they can be used, but if you go to a large super store or an Asian market, the real thing is best. We never found a good LITTLE WINDOW ON MAIN STREET: Have you planted your flower barrels for your business place? Makes a difference to travelers and tourists when a town goes to some trouble to look spiffy. Norton is beginning to bloom as the rain and warm weather pop our daffodils, tulips and flowering trees into full glory. And the Flower Ladies have been busy already getting planters and flower beds readied. Keep them on your volunteer possibilities and on your donation list. They contribute a lot to Norton.

JAPANESE CELLOPHANE NOODLE SOUP

Four plump chicken thighs
Medium white onion
Salt, pepper, Oriental Five Spice powder and soy sauce

This dish is best prepared starting a day ahead. Simmer chicken thighs in three cups water, chopped white onion, a tablespoon salt, pepper, two tablespoons soy sauce and a tablespoon Oriental Five Spice powder until chicken is tender. Remove chicken, skin, cover and chill overnight. Chill broth separately and skim all fat, leave onions in.

Package of Saifun noodles (also called bean thread or cellophane noodles) soaked according to package directions and scissor cut in two-inch pieces

Half a cup chopped celery
Half a cup Daikon (white Oriental) radish OR one can sliced water chestnuts
One cup fresh sliced straw mushrooms OR a small can mushroom bits and pieces
One can sliced bamboo shoots
Small jar of chopped pimento (just for color)
One cup snow peas, trimmed in half

Use a 6-quart soup kettle and measure three cups chicken broth into it. Bring to a boil and add celery and Daikon, cook just to tender crisp. Turn heat to simmer and add Saifun, stir and check seasoning. Add at least one more tablespoon Oriental Five Spice powder, more if you prefer, two tablespoons soy sauce, salt and fresh ground pepper to taste. Cut chicken into inch chunks and add, add canned vegetables (including water chestnuts if you have to use them). Stir gently so you don't break up pieces and allow all to simmer for an hour or so. Add more broth (canned is OK) if necessary to keep pretty soupy. Fifteen minutes before serving add the snow pea pods and pimentos. Cellophane noodles, unlike flour and egg noodles, do not disintegrate into the soup but get tastier the longer they simmer; however pea pods are best when still bright green and a little crunchy.
