Upinion

My chance to have the last word

This is the third of six columns written by retiring staff members of the Norton School District. We thought what they had to say at their retirement reception would also be enjoyed by the readership of The Telegram. We thank Superintendent Mann for his assistance in helping us expand their comments to include all residents in the Norton district.

Today: Bruce Poage ¬ o end any prevailing suspi cions about how long I have been in education, let me tell you I started in the 4-6 grade classroom of a two-room school. I grew up driving a tractor, moving irrigation pipe, and reading car magazines. I remember telling my mom one time that I didn't want to go to college. I'd just stay home, work for dad and learn how to work on cars. She erased that notion quickly by telling me that I would be going to college. Thanks for the direction, mom.

My first teaching contract was with the Salina School District (#305). The contract salary was $5,725. Men were paid $125 more than women. The reason given was that men were required to help park cars and work Salina High football games! In three years, I never parked a car or worked a game. My first teaching assignment was Parsons Elementary, a former rural attendance center that had become part of Unified School District #305 through consolidation. I had 24 students in grades 4-6. There were early experiences there I will never forget. There was the day the kids headed out for recess, made a quick U-turn and came back inside screaming about the bull snake coiled on home plate. What'llIdo?Iput on a brave face and clubbed it to death with a ball bat! The playground had a nice covering of buffalo grass. My leather soled shoes found the footing to be a bit slippery for recess football. In the huddle following one of my nose dives, a cute, blueeyed, curly-haired fifth grader named West McArthur looked me right in the eye and seriously asked, "Mr. Poage, do you have to play on our team?" At Parsons Elementary, the fall parent- and outstanding educators. We teacher conferences were on an may be a smaller district in a rural afternoon group conference format. In my second year at that school, the conference was scheduled for the day after the birth of our first son, Steve. Conference time was 1:30. At 1:35, there were a number of moms in cars in the parking lot, but no one had come into the building. I was quite nervous. At 1:40, they all came into my room loaded with cake, presents and punch. I was the guest of honor at a baby shower. In my third year, I was assigned to a sixth grade classroom in a school with a heavy minority and low socio-economic population. I wasn't prepared for those challenges, so I decided to set sail for the business world. I became a new business representative for Kansas Power and Light. That was a great experience. I failed in the world of business and sales, but I was successful in learning that I done in a first class manner. I have valued people and relationships more than money. I returned to education as a junior high teacher at Longford School, a small, rural Clay County school. It was a great place for us at that time in our lives. Longford High School closed the next year and I got to try my hand at school administration as Head Teacher of Longford Elementary School. In that position, I learned enough about school administration to enroll in an elementary guidance masters program at K-State. Since receiving my Master's Degree in 1973, I have worked in three good school dis-Marshall tricts: County (Marysville), Clay County (Clay Center) and Norton. But for me and my family, the move we made to the Norton School District in 1980 was the best move we had made. This is a great community and an outstanding school system.

In Their Own Words

Our oldest son, Steve, is a CPA and currently working as Vice President/CFO for the Kansas Hospital Association and CEO of Kansas Health Services. Kyle, after receiving a master's degree in meteorology from St. Louis University, is a journeyman forecaster with the National Weather Service. Some of you here had Steve and Kyle as students. I thank you and those who have gone before you for the education you provided our children. I also thank their mother, my wife Mary, for their good study habits and their achievement in math and science.

Our sons might have gotten some of their work ethic from me, but their academic strength came from their mom. My wife of 42 years has been the best partner I could have. In our early life we made lots of moves. I appreciated her so very much. She has been the best friend and help mate I could have.

It has been my privilege to have worked for 26 years as a counselor in this school district. I have worked with a number of excellent area, but we are on the cutting edge and among the leaders in Kansas education. I have seen so many changes and improvements in the way we educate children. This is a community and school district where high expectations are the norm. We all have those moments when we may be down, disappointed or discouraged about our students' behavior, or achievement. We may be upset by parents' comments, or by decisions made by administration or board of education. But as I have heard my fellow junior high staff member George Rossi often repeat, "You don't have to look very far to appreciate all that we have here." In this district outstanding educators are the rule, not the exception. We are looked up to and envied by our educational peers. Anything done in the Norton School District is always been proud to work at Eisenhower and Norton Junior High School.

I will miss daily contact with elementary kids who have a way of putting a smile on your face. I will miss my crossword puzzle friends. I didn't work crossword puzzle until I met Kevin Jilka 26 years ago. I will miss hearing Mr. Will's high school band, or Miss Lee's vocal students practicing. I will miss comments and notes from kids like the one I received several years ago from a sixth grade girl that read, "Mr. Poage You are my knight in shining armour." I will miss the daily antics of junior high kids who can't decide if they are kids or adults and may change their opinion five times in one day. I will miss wearing blue and yellow on game days and sharing conversation and Blue Jay sports action with fellow table and press box workers. I will miss conversations and working with Greg Mann who has great insights and unwavering decisions that you can rely on. Where else could you fill your building principal's pickup cab with wadded up newspapers on his 40th birthday and still retain your job? That would be the same place where the building principal tapes the counselor's door shut from the inside and crawls out the window as a part of a 50th birthday celebration!

I won't miss state assessments. I don't like the way they drive everything we do in school. I won't miss the responsibility of being Crisis Team Leader. To this day I worry when I hear sirens on a weekend evening when I know high school kids are having a good time and not making good decisions. I think schools have taken or been given social responsibilities that should be left to parents, churches and community agencies. I won't miss parents who think counselors can work miracles while they take a vacation. I won't miss scheduling classes when I know I must put more kids in a class than I think is optimal for a good learning environment. I won't miss that time of the year when negotiations are underway and those who need to work together for kids seem to become adversaries. We have worked hard together as we meet the changing educational and social needs of our children. We have cried together when we have lost a staff member or student. We have laughed together as we have shared stories about students and enjoyed a few practical jokes. I have been privileged to work with a first class staff -"Thanks." Mary and I want to be closer to our four, and soon to be five grandkids and enjoy being more involved in their lives and activities. I'm not done working. Since I was 18 years old I have never been away from work for more than two weeks. Who knows what business may need my talents and abilities. As we close this chapter in our book of life, we will always say without hesitation, "We are proud to be a Blue Jay!"

A lamb show in the making ...

FFA advisor, Garrett Beydler, demonstrated how to prepare a lamb for showing and the proper ring techniques. Mr. Beydler is one of the Norton County Fair's sheep superintendents. — Telegram photo by Carolyn Plotts

School to leave fees, meal prices as they are

(Continued from Page 1) compensation and liability insurance for the 2006-07 school vear.

• Accepted a bid of $10,500 from the Naught-Naught Agency of Columbia, Mo., for the district's student accident insurance for the 2006-07 school year.

• Disallowed the only bid received for a school sedan, since it then approved the revised bid specifications for re-submission.

Head Start program for the 2006-07 school year.

• Reviewed a very preliminary copy of the budget for 2006-07. money was available for special Mr. Mann said the budget was education in the 2005-06 year and based on what the state legislation so the budgets needed to be repubpassed. But, he said, it has yet to lished.

did not meet specifications and be approved by the state supreme court.

 Directed the clerk to republish Continued participation in the the 2005-06 general fund and special education budgets and set a budget hearing for 7 a.m. on June 30. Mr. Mann said additional

It's a dinner, not a dance, that's preferred

(Continued from Page 1) Urban and Wendy Haresnape as the Eisenhower volleyball coaches; Mark Kelley as the Eisenhower At-Risk tutor; Vickie Bainter as the Eisenhower assistant cook; Keith Hauser as the district's technology coordinator; Kristen Maddy as the junior high assistant track coach; and Norma Archibald as the high school/junior high assistant cook.

• Approved the new job description for the position of director of educational technology.

Keith Hauser as the district's director of educational technology.

• Approved the transfer of Lucas Melvin from junior high technology to high school At-Risk coordinator.

• Approved a letter of intent with to hire a part-time assistant. Erin Manning as the junior high computer teacher.

• Approved work agreements with Kathy Richard and Tamela maintenance help.

• Approved a work agreement with Lynette Archer as the junior part-time clerical position in the • Approved a contract with high assistant volleyball coach.

 Approved a supplemental work agreement with Joan Bolt as the Eisenhower volleyball coach.

 Approved Lucas Melvin as the summer weight program coordinator and gave him the authority

 Approved the 2006-07 Site Council memberships as presented.

 Approved the professional Wessel as additional summer development council points as presented.

> Approved the addition of a district office.

Space Available Air Duct Cleaning Limousine Service Affordable Classic Limousines DIVERSIFIED WOULDN'T YOUR and Car Service MECHANICAL Pick-up and Delivery Services Available AD LOOK Weddings Business Proms Special Events Night on the MAINTENANCE GREAT HERE!!! Town, or Errands – Special Attention for Your Special Day (785) 202-0952 Norton, KS, 67654 CALL 877-3361 Air Duct Cleaning Services Available 24-Hours/Day "DONE RIGHT! Dryer Rx Compounding and Therapy Vent Cleaning 1son Residential tir Doct Cleaning Commercial Industrial Customized Rx compounding & Therapy \longrightarrow prescriptions for James E. Hampton, RPh, PCCA Member www.dlverslfledmm.com patients with TOLL FREE 416 State Street, Suite A unique medical 1-800-AirDuct situations Atwood, Kansas 67730 requiring (785) 626-3237 247-3828 unique medical (800) 696-3214 FREE ESTIMATES solutions. Bison Rxcompounding@atwoodtv.net Space for Rent Auto Service Repair Hot Opportunity PROBLEM SOLVED! Wouldn't Your Ad Complete Computer Diagnosis CAREFUL ATTENTION SETS OUR SERVICE SHOP APART FROM OTHERS 0 ~Tune-ups ~Air Conditioner Call Hypatia ~Brakes ~Exhaust System ~Shocks ~Radiator Repair Todav Great Here? To Get Your Ad Started! Call 877-3361 MOTOR COMPANY 877-3361 GIVE YOUR BUSINESS THE ATTENTION IT DESERVES!! CALL ΤH E

From the Mailbag: Need some money for the fireworks display

To the Editor,

The Fourth of July is fast approaching and our annual fireworks display is in need of your help. Donations are desperately needed!

I'm sure many of you will say, "I can't afford to give enough to make a difference." Any donation - large or small - is needed and is greatly appreciated. Please look through your spare change or open your wallet for this great family fun night.

Donation cans are located at Jamboree, Norton Shop & Save, Dairy Queen and the Norton Ar- ity become a thing of the past. chery fireworks stand, or they can be mailed or dropped off at the Chamber office, 104 South State, Norton.

If you have never been to our fireworks display, please consider doing so this year. It's really quite spectacular and the fun events before make it an evening to enjoy. Come out to Prairie Dog State Park, enjoy free watermelon, music, karaoke and visit with neighbors and friends.

Don't let this family fun activ-

Karla Reed, Director Norton Area Chamber of Commerce

Share your thoughts with a Letter to the Editor

Spaces Always Available: 1" per month — $42.50 2" per month — $76.50 3" — per month — $103.50

JOIN TOM'S ADVERTISING TEAM 877-6908