New Cosmetology Department

Northwest Kansas Technical College and the Goodland Ambassadors celebrated the newly renovated Cosmetology Department.

More than 100 individuals came through for a tour of the renovated Cosmetology Department of Northwest Tech. Christa Bergsma, Cosmetology Instructor, and current students gave tours and explained the various salon and spa services that are being taught.

Northwest Tech Cosmetology students experience hands-on training and offer these salon and spa services to the public five days a week from 8 a.m.

to 3 p.m. Students are learning the latest trends and techniques through their ongoing training and education.

"The Northwest Tech students are passionate about what they are learning and appreciate the understanding of each client participating first-hand in the educational experience, without our clients, our students wouldn't be able to prepare for their profession in the field of cosmetology," said Bergsma.

Dr. Ed Mills, president of the College, said "I am excited about having this state of the art equipment and great learning environment available to our students.

Northwest Tech has undergone many changes over the past year, and this is one of the many in an effort to enhance student educational services available to them."

Anyone interested in pursuing a career in cosmetology or needing more information about the program may contact Christa Bergsma directly at 785-890-1555 or prospective students may contact the Northwest Tech Admissions office at 1-800-316-4127 ext. 515.

You may also go to the Northwest Tech website at www.nwktc.edu for more information on the College.

Escaped inmate captured in Colby

An escaped inmate from the Hutchinson Correctional Facility was gone for only a few hours before being captured in a Colby bar.

According to the Associated Press, Robert Nickelson, 44, escaped Sunday evening from a work-release program at a food plant in Chase, near Great Bend. He had been serving five years and six months for the rape of an exotic dancer in Topeka in 2000 and two years for conspiracy to commit rape.

At 11 p.m. that night, said Police Chief Randy Jones, the Colby Police Department got a call about a suspicious person at the B-Hive Bar and Grill.

The caller, an employee of the bar, said the man had been trying to sell a vehicle.

In a release, Jones said Officer Donnie Valles went to the bar and met the employee outside. Officer

Sam Steele and Sheriff's Deputy Lance Goodman also went to the bar and together, the officers found a dark blue Chevrolet S-10 pickup truck parked nearby.

A check of the license plate got a hit from the National Crime Information Center, Jones said. The truck had been reported stolen from Rice County with Nickelson listed as the possible driver.

The officers went into the bar and arrested Nickelson without incident. The chief said he did not give any information about himself but he was identified by photos sent out after his escape.

Nickelson was taken to the Law Enforcement Center and has been turned over to Kansas Department of Corrections officers, Jones said.
