Stewardship sign up extended

Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) Chief Dave White recently announced the ranking period cut-off date for producer applications in Natural Resources Conservation Service' Conservation Stewardship Program (CSP) has been extended to January 7, 2011.
 "We're extending the deadline for applications to provide agricultural producers more time to complete their applications," said White.
 "With the additional time, farmers can use this program's self-screening checklist to determine if the program is suitable for their operation and then go to their Natural Resources Conservation Service office and sign-up," said Eric B. Banks, Natural Resources Conservation Service State Conservationist in Kansas.
 The Conservation Stewardship Program checklist highlights basic information about eligibility requirements, contract obligations, and potential payments. It is available from local Natural Resources Conservation Service offices or online.
 "The Conservation Stewardship Program has proven popular with stewardship-minded and conservation-conscious Kansas producers who have been stewards of the land for over 75 years," said Banks. "So, it is only natural that Kansas is a leader in producers eligible for the program."

 Kansas producers enrolled over 1.2 million acres in 875 contracts for over $17 million.
 Conservation Stewardship Program is offered in all 50 states, District of Columbia, and the Pacific and Caribbean areas. The program provides many conservation benefits including improvement of water and soil quality, wildlife habitat enhancement, and adoption of conservation activities that address the effects of climate change.
 All producers are encouraged to apply for Conservation Stewardship Program. The program, authorized in the 2008 Farm Bill, offers payments to producers who maintain a high level of conservation on their land and who agree to adopt higher levels of stewardship. Eligible lands include cropland, pastureland, rangeland, and nonindustrial forestland.
