Life saving award goes to employee

The American Red Cross worker, Diana Hanchett, awarded Norton Correctional Facility's employee, Tom Brown, the Lifesaving Award for Professional Responder on Monday.

While at work at the facility, Mr. Brown noticed an inmate choking on a piece of bread. Due to his Red Cross training, Mr. Brown knew what to do and took the appropriate action and performed emergency attendance on the man saving his life.

"This is only the second time in the past ten years that this award has been given out," said Hanchett. The last one to receive it was her 12 year old grand daughter who saved her little brother after taking a Red Cross baby sitting class.

Mr. Brown received a certificate signed by the President of the United States and the CEO and Chairman of the American Red Cross, a medal on a ribbon and two additional ribbons recognizing his heroic actions.

Club News

Beverly Kindler welcomed members and guests when Mid-Century General Federation of Women's Clubs met Jan. 17 at the Andbe Home.

Special guests were 20 lady residents of the Andbe Home.

Darlene McEwen presented a beautiful DVD of "Old Maser's Religious Art and Madonna Prints". The DVD is from the General Federation of Women's Clubs Traveling Art Program and is of lovely Madonna paintings from the 1500's. Darlene was assisted by Lester Mizell.

Beverly opened the business meeting with the quote, "You bring something beautiful to the world, something no one else can offer"—"A celebration of Your Dreams-Go For It."

Beverly reminded everyone that volunteer hours were due.

Fonda Lawrence read a letter from Carolyn Applegate asking that her membership be changed from Active member to Associate member. This request was accepted.

She also read a Thank You letter from Judy Davis for the act of sympathy shown her following the death of her daughter, Leigh Davis.

A letter from Post Prom was read asking for donations for the prom. Mid-Century's gift to the prom is for scholarships.

A Get Well card was signed for Rosetta McFarland, a former member of Mid-Century who is now in rehab following a stroke.

Beverly conducted a New Member Recognition Service for the four new club members: Margaret Thomas, Lyn Linde, Cheryl Scott and Shirley Farber.

Feb. 4 was Wear Red Day sponsored by the American Heart Association to bring awareness for heart health. Everyone is encouraged to wear red that day.

Roll call was answered by the 16 members with "A painting I like".

Hostesses for the evening were Leta Donovan, Rosalie McMullen and Lynn Nelson.

The next meeting will be guest night on Feb. 24 at 7 p.m. and will be at the new Immanuel Lutheran Church.
