Nex-Tech name summer interns

Six area high school students will be participating in the inaugural Nex-Tech, Nex-Generation Internship Program this summer. Beginning June 6, 2011, and continuing for nine weeks, the students will receive hands-on experiences in a variety of technical and non-technical fields. Upon completion of the program, students will have gained valuable skills that will help with their transition from the classroom to a career.

The Nex-Generation interns will work with and learn from Nex-Tech/Rural Telephone business professionals in a fast-paced work environment. Along with a competitive salary, interns will also receive a new laptop and smartphone that will be theirs to keep!

Nex-Generation internship applicants had to submit a resume and a cover letter, and finalists were than then interviewed by a panel of judges. After reviewing the applications and completing the interviews, the company chose six interns were chosen for six different career tracks.

The six students chosen for the internship opportunity are Katelyn Baughman, Stockton; Derek Erbert, Hays; Haley Graham, Almena; Jill Hertel, Hays; William Patton, Phillipsburg; and Zane Swafford, Hays.

Jacque Beckman, youth services services/community development coordinator, is looking forward to working with the interns. "The goal for this program is to educate the students on how state-of-the-art technology is working for our company and to show them that , they don't have to leave western Kansas to gain a challenging and rewarding career."
