What a difference a year makes

Message to gardeners: Don't judge how landscape plants will behave based on last year.

"What a difference a year makes," said Kansas State University horticulturist Ward Upham, adding that by mid-March of last year, winter honeysuckle, red maple, flowering pear, forsythia and more were in full bloom because of unseasonably warm weather early in the year. By the first of April even more plants were blooming, like apple fruiting pear, flowering dogwood and Vanhoutte spirea. But this year, the only one of those plants that was in full bloom on April 1 was winter honeysuckle.

"It's important to remember," Upham said, "that last year we were two to three weeks ahead of normal and so we might not be as far behind as it first appears. However, we are behind."

Forsythia, for example, typically is in full bloom about the third week in March.

"Since 2005, the earliest we have seen full bloom on forsythia was March 10, 2006 and the latest was April 5, 2008," he said. "Therefore, it appears we are about two weeks behind normal and about a month behind last year."

That does not mean, however, that the spring growing season will stay two weeks behind normal, Upham added. Below-normal temperatures will cause plants to lag even further, while above-normal temperatures would allow plants to at least partially catch up.

"Regardless, it appears that 'normal' in Kansas is just an average of extremes," Upham said.

Cloud County Summer Program returns

LYLE NEWS

Joyce Sumner returned from her trip to Florida, where she had a good visit with her son Larry, and grandson, Ryan, of Jensen Beach, Fla. While there she went boating; saw Cape Canaveral; and climbed to the top of a lighthouse, among other things. They were having cooler weather than usual while she was there. One thing she does not miss, being home, is the traffic.

Although Toots Magers had celebrated her birthday the previous Saturday, we had more of her cake on Sunday at the church dinner. Her actual birthday was Monday, April 8, then the Liberty Star Club met at her home on Wednesday, April 10, so we got to enjoy it again. The ladies had planned a plant sale for the April meeting, but the day was very cold, so we may have a few plants next month. Members present were Toots magers, Carolyn Plotts, Joyce Price, Sandy Gade, Carol Moye and Veda Wood. Carolyn gave some interesting information and pictures of their trip to Guatemala.

Judy and Charlie Easton visited Toots Sunday afternoon.

Colleen Rippe visited June Jolly on Friday and took a quilt June had promised her for their bazaar. June played pitch on Monday, and on Saturday the card club she belongs to had their end of the year party. She went to a garage sale on Saturday.

Carol Moye visited me on Monday. She has been wanting to help me with a little gardening, but----brrrr. We enjoyed being inside instead.

An interesting tidbit (to me, anyway) Carol was born on her Dad's birthday; Sandra was born the first day of spring; David on Christmas and Merlin on income tax day. Happy birthday Merlin!!!!

Kathy Van Meter and Lloyd Frandsen visited with Toots Magers on Friday. On Sunday, Jane Engelhardt and Judy and Charlie Easton were there. She was also visited by Sherri and Susan [Browning?] children and grandchildren of Ona Scrivner. June Jolly attended the Humane Society's garage sale and went to a "fun day" at Indianola, Ne. She was given a picture of the school she started in, showing her brother, Lee Aller, Lee Eckhart, Verle Leichter and Ethel Smith [Miller]. She felt that it was taken the year before she started to school.

We who were at Lyle on Sunday were happy to see Larry and Neal Van Otterloo, who had made it back for the week-end. Larry had taken a job in Iowa, and while we hated to see him go, we were glad for his getting the good job.

Kathy Van Meter reported that it was pouring rain this morning, Monday. Apparently a few miles to the north they are getting a good soaking. June Jolly also said it was raining hard in McCook. Norcatur is getting a good shower, but not that much moisture yet.

Joyce Sumner went to 'sit' her grandchildren while their mother, Melanie, went for more training. She has been a teacher, and now will be counseling.
