Museum equals summer fun

With summer halfway over, with the goings-on that seemed exciting back in May maybe having lost some of their allure now, the Sternberg Museum of Natural History is presenting multiple activities and exhibits to rekindle the excitement while entertaining and educating.

Another exhibit is "Mammal Invasion," a display of creatures from the Ice Age in realistic settings. People can learn about some of the large mammals that existed after the dinosaurs' extinction. A giant bird from the same era is also on display.

First-, second- and third-place prizes will be awarded, and admission to the museum covers participation costs.

Sternberg Museum also has additional one-day activities available. "Family Slithery Evening," 6:30-10 p.m. Saturday, July 27, will provide an in-depth look at the "Rattlerssss" display along with snacks, crafts, lore and snake tricks. can be prevented. Correctly placing children in age and size appropriate car seats and booster seats reduces their chances of serious and fatal injuries. Nearly one-third of children ride in the wrong restraints for their age and size. Car seats reduce the risk of death by 71 percent for infants and by 54 percent for children under ages 1-4. To assist in the reduction, the Norton County Hospital recently sponsored four employees to attend a three day Child Passenger Safety course. Judy Wenzl, Cami Cornelius, Elizabeth Lombardi and Paige Harding completed their certification in May of 2013 as car seat technicians.

Other local technicians in the area include Stacy Scheetz who lives in New Almelo and works

Seed Grants designed to engage volunteers

For the second year, Volunteer Kansas will be giving 10 organizations in Kansas $500 Seed Grants to support service projects that will engage volunteers.

"We have found there are times that the absence of a little bit of cash is the only thing standing in the way of a group of volunteers taking on a service project that would greatly benefit others. The Volunteer Kansas Seed Grants help them to get things started and ready to grow just like the seeds so many of our Kansas farmers use," said Volunteer Kansas Executive Director Nola Brown.

The application process is simple. Those interested in applying for a grant should email the following information to contact@volunteerkansas.org by August 15:

1. A paragraph about your organization including contact information.

2. Up to three paragraphs explaining your project, how volunteers will participate and who

it will benefit.

3. A budget detailing how the $500 grant will be used.

Projects chosen for grants require listings as volunteer opportunities on volunteerkansas. org. They must include the use of at least 20 volunteers. Winners will be asked to post before, during and after project photos/ videos to the Volunteer Kansas fan page on Facebook.

The vision of Volunteer Kansas is to move Kansas from the state ranking of number seven for volunteerism to number one. "Mobilizing groups of volunteers who wish to good will help us more quickly realize our vision," said Brown. "We hope these Seed Grants will bring about some excitement and encourage volunteerism."

Volunteer Kansas, Inc., is a 501(c)(3) charity based in Wichita, Kan. Volunteerkansas. org is the organization's website devoted to increasing volunteerism in the state of Kansas and providing a hub for Kansans to find other Kansans who may need volunteer or material help. The website is a free service to individuals and organizations.
