The Cheyenne County Young Miss program will be held at 7 p.m. on Saturday in the high school auditorium in St. Francis. The audience will be able to enjoy the air-conditioned auditorium as well as the program.

There are three girls vying for the title of Young Miss. They include: Dale Northrup, Amber Smull and Emily Mullins.

"We are planning a full evening of entertainment," said Dana Rose, chairman.

This year's theme is "The Roaring 20s." Last year's Young Miss, Amanda Walden, will make an appearance, entertaining the audience with several numbers including the dance she did for her performing arts selection last year. She will also be giving a reading. Along with the individual talent numbers performed by the contestants, they will be dressed in evening gowns for the "Poise and Elegance" category. Megan Rice is choreographing the "Endurance" performance.

At 2 p.m. on Saturday, a parade and autograph session will be held on St. Francis' Main Street.

The girls have begun a rigorous routine of activities this week. They are meeting daily for practices, makeup sessions, mock interviews along with special lunches and picnics.

Earlier this week, the contestant winning the "Academics" category was selected by a separate panel of judges.

The program enables incoming senior girls a chance to develop themselves in the areas of scholastic, interviews, talent, physical fitness and poise.

Following are short biographies and photos of the girls:

Emily Mullins
Emily Mullins will be a senior at St. Francis Community High School and plans to attend Fort Hays State University following graduation. She said she would like to pursue a career as a translator.

For her talent number, Emily will be giving a reading.

Emily is the daughter of JR and Jennifer Landenberger, St. Francis.

Dale Northrup
Dale Northrup, a senior at St. Francis Community High School, plans to study communications at Fort Hays State University following high school graduation.

She will entertain the audience with a humorous reading for her talent number.

Dale is the daughter of David and Aimee Northrup, St. Francis.

Amber Smull
Amber Smull will be a senior at St. Francis Community High School. She plans to study in the psychological field at Fort Hays State University.

Amber will be presenting a lyrical dance for her talent number.

Grants awarded to primary clinics

Cheyenne County and Rawlins County are receiving grants from the Kansas Department of Health and Environment.

Roderick Bremby, department secretary, said $6.3 million in primary care clinic and health center grants to help thousands of Kansans, many with no health insurance, will be able to access comprehensive primary and preventive health care services. Of the 39 clinics across the state, the Cheyenne County Clinic will receive $90,000 and Rawlins County Health Department will receive $17,872.

The funding will enable these community-based projects to continue assuring access to affordable primary health care services for underserved Kansans residents.

"This grant program demonstrates the unique relationship and shared responsibility of the state of Kansas, local leaders, health care volunteers, foundations, and the federal government in supporting systems of care to assure access to primary and preventive health services for all Kansans," he said. "The services these clinics provide are critically important, making available needed health care services for families without health insurance or those who cannot afford the high cost of care."

In 2008, nearly 180,000 Kansans received health care at a state-funded primary care clinic. Nearly 60 percent of these patients were uninsured, and over 65 percent were in households that earn less than the federal poverty level.
