Riders enjoys travel on their motorcycles

Ted Glasco, who is a major in the Air Force and lives in Alexandria, Va., decided that he was going to ride his motorcycle to Sturgis, S.D.

He left on Aug. 1 with the goal of averaging 500 miles a day. The first day was good and he was able to drive 601 miles to Howe, Ind., where he met up with his friend Chris Yates. Mr. Yates is also in the Air Force.

On Aug. 3, they ran into a torrential rain storm, putting them behind a little but they were able to make it to Sturgis by Aug. 4. The next two days were spent touring the Black Hills.

While at Mount Rushmore, they had Chris's "pin on ceremony" at the amphitheater. Mr. Glasco did the honors by administering the oath of office for Mr. Yates to receive his captain rank in the Air Force, and then pinned on the new shoulder boards.

They left South Dakota on Aug. 7 and made it to Billings, Mont. They traveled on to Yellowstone National Park and then to the Grand Teton Mountains. On Aug. 10, they left Rock Springs, Wyo., and pulled into Bird City around 8 p.m. that night.

Mr. Glasco is a native of Bird City and the son of Lynn and Candy Glasco, who live there.

"What a welcome sight it was to see them coming down the street and hear the rumble of their Harley's," Terry's mother said. "They finally made it!"

Those there to welcome them besides their parents were Terry and Tiffany Glasco and Kenneth, Cely Glasco, Colorado Springs, and grandparents, Glenn and Millie Glasco.

the trip and just visiting. Mr. Glasco and Mr. Yates left after church on Aug. 12 and made their way back to the east coast.

"We were so excited to see Ted and I'm sure Chris will be glad to see his wife and family when he gets home," Mrs. Glasco concluded.
