

GIVING BLOOD — There are 19 students in the St. Francis high school sophomore class. Eight of the class stepped forward and gave blood at the Red Cross Blood Drive. Because of all the people who gave blood on Thursday, Vickie Cress, Rebekah member and one of the coordinators for the drive, said the quota was 70 pints but donors gave 10 pints over that. Pictured giving blood are:, top, Darris Keller, and to the left, Sarah Guthmiller.

Medical technicians visit schools during the week

Emergency Medical Service Week started Sunday and the emergency medical technicians have been seen at the schools in both St. Francis and Bird City. The visits are to help make students more aware of what is in the ambulances and not to be afraid when an ambulance might come to their door. Gift sacks were given to each of the students to take home and enjoy.

Emergency Medical Service providers include paramedics, technicians, first responders, fire fighters and police. In Cheyenne County, there are no paramedics.

Throughout the county, the special week is celebrated in many ways. However, the Cheyenne County technicians are seen often responding to emergency calls. They can also be found helping and providing extra services at different events and functions in the county throughout the entire year, including the many times they have provided blood pressure checks.

"Around one million emergency medical service professionals provide lifesaving care to people in their communities when every minute counts, before they even get to the emergency department," said Jannelle Bowers, county service director.

"This year's theme, 'Your Life is Our Mission,' illustrates the selflessness and commitment these extraordinary people bring to their jobs every hour of every day of the year. For this, they deserve recognition and thanks."

When do people call 911 for medical assistance?

"Is the victim's condition lifethreatening?" "Could the victim's condition worsen and become life-threatening on the way to the hospital?" "Does the victim require the skills or equipment of a medical technician?" And, "could the distance or traffic conditions cause a delay in getting the victim to the hospital?"

Ronald Kenneth Cram was born to John Anderson and Isabella Finlayson Stewart McCall Cram on Sept. 7, 1908, in Cheyenne County, Kan., the youngest of six children. His parents were immigrants from Scotland who homesteaded northeast of Bird City in 1886.

Kenneth went to the Country Brick School, District 51, and graduated from Bird City High School. He attended Kansas State University in Manhattan.

On Feb. 20, 1937, Kenneth married Beulah Mae Leach at the United Methodist Church in Bird City. Beulah died before Kenneth on Dec. 11, 1998, after 61 years of marriage.

Kenneth was inducted into the United States Army at Fort Logan, Colo., in October 1943. His basic training was at Fort Riley, Kan. Next he reported to Fort Ord, Calif., where he was issued complete new uniforms and jungle equipment.

"I was almost certain it was not Florida I was going to," said Kenneth.

Next, he was sent to Fort Mc-Dowell, near San Francisco, where he boarded a ship-destination
