Many entries in parade

There were many entries in the Cheyenne County Fair Parade including floats, horses, antique vehicles and individuals, just to name some. They had taken the theme, "Another Day In Paradise," and the creativity of the floats made for a great parade.

The parade is coordinated by the St. Francis Area Chamber of Commerce.

"It was another great parade," said Carla Lampe, Chamber member and one of the coordinators.

"It was a pretty, cool morning and I think everyone had a fun time."

The over-all grand champion float was the Good Samaritan Village. Winning the first-place commercial division float was Bankwest, St. Francis. The Melvin Dunn family won the family division; and Living Waters Church took the organization division.

Presiding over the parade this year were grand marshals, Willard and Bonnie Busby.

The Once Again Band went through the parade twice and the music helped set the stage for a great parade.

We were pleased with the turnout of entries, Mrs. Lampe said. There were lots of people lined up along the sides and they were very patient when there was a lull.

"Once again, it was a good time!"
