

JUDE FAULKENDER displayed his project at the Cheyenne County Fair and will be taking it to the State Fair.

Fair 4-H projects can inspire others

Visiting 4-H Centennial Hall at the Kansas State Fair in Hutchinson Sept. 5-14 is recommended for families who are considering youth development opportunities, said Justin Wiebers, Kansas State University Research and Extension 4-H events coordinator.

Seeing the completed projects often can help children and their families make choices, but most who visit the building also say they are inspired by the quantity and the quality of the 4-H projects, he said, who is expecting more than 11,000 4-H exhibits at the fair this year.

To qualify for exhibit at the Kansas State Fair, a 4-H member must be 10 years of age or older, and first have earned a top award in his or her project category at a county fair.

Projects within any one category will vary, he said, who previewed some of the unusual project exhibits accepted this year:

- A picnic cooler cover and stand made from scraps of old barn siding has earned its creator, Jude Faulkender, a member of the Pleasant Hill 4-H Club in Cheyenne County, a spot in the 4-H woodworking exhibit at the state fair this year.

Jude worked without a pattern, but measured carefully to make sure the stand would fit the family's cooler, which is now dressed up and ready for family get-togethers.

Results from 4-H judging at the 2008 Kansas State Fair will be posted on the Kansas 4-H Web site as soon after judging as possible, said Mr. Wiebers.

To check results, go to www.Kansas4-H.org and click on the link to "State Fair Results."

Being able to check results on the web is helpful for families who need to return home before the results are posted and others, such as grandparents and friends at home, he said. Fairgoers also will be able to check results on computers in 4-H Centennial Hall, at the north end of the fairgrounds. The building is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sept. 5-13, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sept. 14 (closing day).

The Cheyenne County Fair Board would like to thank these volunteers that helped with the fair!

What is it that draws us to cemeteries?
When Stan and I travel, we stop at cemeteries. We've visited cemeteries in the middle of cities, cemeteries on lonely wind-blown mountaintops, war cemeteries in France and cemeteries where old country churches once stood.

While reading about cemeteries online, I found a short article that helped me understand why we always stop to take a look. The author most probably was Mary Bannon, who wrote the passage in the 1970s.

"This is a Cemetery. Lives are commemorated. Deaths are recorded. Families are reunited. Memories are made tangible, and love is undisguised."

"Communities accord respect.

Families bestow reverence. Historians seek information, and our heritage is thereby enriched. "Testimonies of devotion, pride and remembrance are carved in stone to pay warm tribute to accomplishments and to the life - not death - of a loved one.
"The cemetery is homeland for family memorials that are a

By Janet Carman sustaining source of comfort to the living.
"A cemetery is a history of people - a perpetual record of yesterday and a sanctuary of peace and quiet today. A cemetery exists because every life is worth loving and remembering - always."
