Incentive program has cutoff date centives Programs (EQIP) under the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (2008 Farm Bill) has a signup cutoff date of Jan. 9. The announcement came from Eric B. Banks, state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). Although applications may be submitted anytime, applications will be gathered for ranking at

Apply at Local Office

Producers with agricultural land, rangeland, or forestland with any concerns listed below should apply at their local field office and work with them on a conservation plan. Those interested should apply at their local Natural Resources Conservation Service office. The office is located at your local U.S. Department of Agricultural Service Center (listed in the telephone book under United States Government or on the internet at offices.usda.gov).

Kansas Identifies Priority Natural Resource Concerns

The Fiscal Year 2009 Kansas Environmental Quality Incentives Programs eligible priority natural

- resource concerns are as follows: • Air Quality – Objectionable
- Domestic Animals Inadequate Stock Water
- Fish and Wildlife Threatened and Endangered Species, Declining Species, and Species of Concern
- Plant Condition Noxious or Invasive Plants; Productivity, Health, Vigor (Forestland, Rangeland, Pastureland, Hayland)
- Soil Condition Organic Matter Depletion
- Soil Erosion Streambank
- Water Quality Excessive Nutrients/Organics in Ground and/or Surface Water; Excessive Suspended Sediment and Turbidity in Surface Water; Harmful Levels of Pesticides in Ground and/or Surface Water
- Water Quantity Aquifer Overdraft; Inefficient Water Use on Irrigated Land; Inefficient Water Use on Non-irrigated Land; and Insufficient Flows in Water Courses.

Program Self-Assessment Worksheets

"Self-assessment worksheets are required again this year if farmers or ranchers apply for 2009 Environmental Quality Incentives Programs funding. They will be required to fill out the producer or rancher has already completed a worksheet, a new one will not need to be submitted. 'When producers or ranchers fill out the self-assessment worksheet, it helps provide them with an indication of the natural resource concerns they have, what they can accomplish, and what they need to do to qualify for the program.'

'The worksheets take some time and thought, so if a landowner plans to apply, that process should begin very soon," said Mr. Banks.

"In the long run, the worksheet is a time-saving and money-saving tool, It reduces the time it takes conservation service to process applications for this program. By reducing the federal dollars required to administer the program, more dollars should be available for producers."

Socially Disadvantaged, Limited Resource, and Beginning Farmers/Ranchers

This environmental program is available to help address the unique circumstances and concerns of social-Worksheet, "said Mr. Banks. "If a and beginning farmers and ranchers, who have natural resource concerns that need to be addressed on their land," said Mr. Banks.

"In Kansas socially disadvantaged, limited resource, and beginning farmers and ranchers may receive a higher payment rate through this program for structural and vegetative practices."

Application Evaluation

Ranking categories and allocation distribution will be determined at a later date. This will not affect the application process.

The conservation service will evaluate each application and give higher priority to those applications that use cost-effective conservation practices; treat multiple resource concerns; address national, state, or local priorities; and provide the most environmental benefits.

Review of the programs 2008 Funding

Kansas received over $28.2 million in 2008, and over 1,700 contracts were funded. More than 2,560 applications were received.

In Kansas, the program funds will

"The objective of the program is to address natural resource concerns through the application of improved conservation systems. Environmental Quality Incentives is an environmental enhancement program," said Mr.

The Environmental Quality Incentives Programs — the highest-funded of the conservation programs in the 2008 Farm Bill — is a voluntary conservation program that promotes environmental quality and assists producers to meet local, state, and federal regulations.

Information Available

As information becomes available, it will be placed on the Kansas Natural Resources Conservation Service Web site www.ks.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/ eqip/2009 or be available at your local U.S. Department of Agricultural Service Center from the conservation service or conservation district staff.

The HPV Vaccine

The Food and Drug Administration developed and licensed the first vaccine in 2006 to prevent cervical cancer and other diseases in females caused by certain types of genital human papillomavirus (HPV). The Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices voted to recommend use of this vaccine in females, ages 9 to 26. The vaccine is recommended for 11-12 year-old girls, but can be administered to girls as young as 9 years of age. The vaccine also is recommended for 13-26 year-old females who have not yet received or completed the vaccine series

This vaccine is given as a three-dose series. The first dose is given with the second dose administered two months after the first dose. The third dose is administered six months after the first dose. Additional booster doses are not recommended. The HPV can also be administered at the same time as other vaccines. Studies from the Center for Disease Control (CDC) found that the HPV vaccine was safe and caused no serious side effects. Adverse events were mainly injection site pain. This reaction was common but mild.

This vaccine is an inactivated (not live) vaccine which protects against four major types of HPV. These include two types that cause about 70 percent of cervical cancer and two types that cause about 90 percent of genital warts. According to the Center for Disease Control, the vaccine can prevent most genital warts and most cases of cervical cancer. The vaccine is not recommended for females with an allergic reaction to yeast or to any vaccine component. Pregnant women should not get the vaccine. The vaccine appears to be safe for both the mother and the fetus; however, the vaccine is still being studied. People with a mild illness when the shot is scheduled can still get the vaccine. People with a moderate or severe illness should wait until they recover from the illness.

Some insurance companies may cover the vaccine and cost of admin- at 332-2682.

istration, others may not. Most large group insurance plans usually cover the costs of recommended vaccines; you will need to check with your insurance company. The Federal Vaccines for Children (VFC) program will provide free vaccines to children and adolescents less than 19 years of age, who are either uninsured, Medicaideligible, American Indian, or Alaska

School and childcare entry laws for all immunizations are state laws and vary from state to state. There is no state or federal laws requiring immunization of children with HPV vaccine.

Plain Sense "Holiday Stress

The holiday season is once again tions and that of others, and be realistic upon us, and people are feeling the about gift giving. Keep it simple, and pressures that are inevitably a part of it. This year may be more stressful because of the financial problems that are currently affecting the United States and world economy. Many as a disappointment. But it does mean that people will need to communicate with family and friends, and do some additional planning. This may be the year that some families come to realize that "simple is better." Expensive gifts and lavish parties are not always necessary to make the holiday season enjoyable and memorable.

To help keep the stress under control, begin by making an effort to talk with other family members about holiday plans. Most families will want to reduce travel expenses this year, so this is a very important topic to discuss early in the season. Be open to change, because this year people will be feeling the need to scale back on plans that may have been made several months within a budget. Overspending for the holidays will result in increased debt and more financial stress into the New Year. It is also important to practice per-families are feeling the need to be more sonal stress management in order to conservative in regards to their money, maintain both mental and physical as well as their time. That doesn't well-being. Watch your time commitmean that the holidays have to end up ments and make sure there is opportunity to rest and relax. Eathealthy, especially when there is the temptation of all the good food and desserts that are available this time of year. Get plenty of exercise, participate in a favorite sport, and take time for some fresh air and sunshine. Keep your expectations from getting too high; accept that not everything will work out as planned. And when things don't happen as desired, keep a sense of humor. The unexpected quite often becomes the best memory of the season!
