Why do Santa's reindeer need their antlers???

The St. Francis first grade students of Joyce Faulkender were asked two questions: "Why do reindeer have antlers?" and "How do reindeer fly?"

To fly, they move their legs back and forth like wings.
Brady Dinkel

We could roast marshmallows with them and use them for battles.

I know they use the antlers to protect themselves against bad animals. You can also hang clothes on them.

They fly by using jet packs. They can go really fast and keep the jet packs in their back packs.

They use magic to fly and help Santa deliver presents.
Isaiah Lee

Seth Mills

They use the antlers to hang coats on and to fight animals. They also can dig for food.

So they can dig for food. They also like to show their antlers around to others.

To fly, they use antlers instead of wings.

They fly so they can deliver presents.

Because they are reindeer. When they are born, the boys come out with antlers on them.

The antlers help to light up the place with his nose. He rubs his horns in the snow.

They kick their legs so they can take off and fly.

The antlers help him to be the leader to help Santa.

Dakota Morris

Christina Stafford

The antlers help take Santa to all the houses, and take him back home when he is done.

The antlers just grow like that. Rudolph has a red nose so they won't run into houses and buildings.

They use magic to fly and they glide a lot.

To fly, he just kicks his legs.

Jack Luke

Marlo Jensen

They use their antlers to open cans, just like a can opener.

The antlers help them to fight. We could also hang keys on them.

They use rocket boosters with batteries to fly.

To fly, they just kick their legs.

Seth Hilt

Cassie Cooks

They are made that way.

I think they have them to fight and protect themselves against bears and other animals. They can also put blankets on the antlers.

He uses magic to fly.

They use magic to fly.

Alondra Gomez

Chandler Hamilton

The antlers help Santa pull his sleigh through the sky. They help him give presents, too.

To fly, they use lots of magic so they can pull Santa's sleigh.

To fly, they run to take off into the sky. The wind helps them to fly.

We can hang coats on them too. They can also use them for protection against bears.

Shelby Bean

Audrey Meyers

They use them to fight and to poke and rub on trees.

I think they like to dig for things, like food. My grandpa likes to get them and put them up in his garage. We can also hang jewelry on the antlers.

They fly with their legs.

Perla Yanez

They use magic to fly.

Cassidy Busse

They have horns to fight other deer and to scratch themselves.
