One day conference on aging to be held

A one-day conference on aging is scheduled April 23 at the Colby United Methodist Church in Colby beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Aging is a normal progression in the life cycle, yet the process usually generates questions...and concerns, said Tranda Watts, a multi-county Kansas State University Research and Extension Multi-County specialist who is based in western Kansas.

Ms. Watts, who typically works with all ages in supporting a healthy lifestyle, also is working to organize the 2010 edition of "Full circle...an Aging Expo."

Sponsors for the conference are the Kansas State Research and Extension Northwest Area Office and Northwest Kansas Area Agency on Aging.

The spring date is a change, as past conferences have been held in the fall, said Ms. Watts, who noted that the conference committee made the change with the hope of better weather and more daylight hours for travel. The program will continue to focus on aging healthfully and is recommended for seniors, their families and caregivers, she said.

"And this year, we're allowing more time for questions," said Ms. Watts, who noted that Dr. Tana Goring, keynote speaker, has titled her presentation "How Do I Know When a Trip to the Doctor is Necessary?"

Other topics include "Elder Law," "Vitamin D," "Mind Aerobics," "Wolf in Sheep's Clothing," "Extra Help," "Enjoying Beautiful Sight/Eye Health," "When a Loved One Passes," "Drug Interaction," "Mind-body Exercises," and "Affordable Kansas Travel."

There is a charge which includes lunch and a conference packet. The deadline for registration is April 15; registration also will be available at the door but a lunch cannot be guaranteed.

For registration or more information, go to www.northwest.ksu.edu and click on "Full Circle Brochure" or contact the Northwest Area K-State Research and Extension Office at (785) 462-6281.

Safety training given to drivers

A commercial motor carrier safety education is being partnered by the Cheyenne County Treasurer's office and the Kansas Corporation Commission's Transportation Division.

The meeting, hosted by Cheyenne, Sherman, Thomas, and Wallace counties, will be held at 3 p.m. central time on Friday, March 26, at the Sherman County 4-H building.

The educational program targets the local agricultural community and is designed to inform farmers and ranchers that operate commercial motor vehicles about state and federal regulations.

"There are many folks in our community that drive a truck that are simply unaware that their trucks qualify as a commercial motor vehicle and that they must comply with safety regulations," said Dolores Jenik, treasurer "Our goal is to educate every farmer and rancher that may be affected in the county."

A presenter from the Kansas Corporation Commission will be on hand to help farmers and ranchers identify if they qualify as a commercial motor vehicle operator and review the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations as well as the Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration's regulations.

"I encourage everyone who thinks that they may qualify as a commercial motor carrier to attend this meeting," said Mrs. Jenik. "We need everyone's help in ensuring the safety of the roads in our community."
