

Holiday fairs offer many gift ideas

Saturday in St. Francis was a day for people to do their Christmas shopping and get ready for the holidays. At the grade school, vendors filled the gym and spilled out into the hall and into the cafeteria. People could buy anything from hump-backed trunks, to Christmas wreaths, honey, soaps, nuts and muffins. The PTA had their annual book fair and the ABC Preschool was serving lunch.

There was a good attendance for the show, said Bonnie Zweygardt, one of the coordinators.

At the First Christian Church, there were a number of tables set up for the Holiday Boutique. There were purses, jewelry, makeup and food items, just to name a few. As people came in, they were greeted with fresh muffins, coffee or cider. There were also door prizes drawn throughout the day.

PURSES AND BAGS were displayed by Amanda Stinemetz at the Holiday Boutique held at the Christian Church on Saturday.

TONY HOWARD'S display of knives and other creative metal works drew many people to his booth.

KEVIN BERENS, above, and his wife, Angie, had a wide variety of homemade soaps and lotions at the Craft Show held at the grade school gym on Saturday.
