Heart health— Shake the salt habit

Take a moment to think about your dining habits. Do you salt your food? How often do you eat out? Are meals at home out of a can or box? If you answered yes to two of these three questions, chances are you're getting too much salt.

You're not alone. Most Americans eat too much salt — close to twice as much as they need, in fact.

You watch your calorie and fat intake to control your weight and improve your health. Why ignore salt? Lowering your salt intake can help lower your blood pressure and your risk of cardiovascular disease. For some individuals — those over age 40 and those of African-American heritage — a low-sodium diet may be especially important. February is national Heart Healthy Month. This is a good time to start monitoring your salt intake.

A report from the "Medicine Journal" found that if Americans cut their salt intake by 3 grams a day, new cases of heart disease, stroke and heart attack would significantly drop — as would the number of deaths.

Here are some tips for reducing sodium in your diet:

- Buy fresh, plain frozen, or canned "with no salt added" vegetables.
- Use fresh poultry, fish, and lean meat, rather than canned or processed types.
- Use herbs, spices and salt-free seasoning blends in cooking and at the table.
- Choose "convenience" foods that are lower in sodium. Cut back on frozen dinners, packaged mixes, canned soups or broths, and salad dressings — these often have a lot of sodium.
- Buy low- or reduced-sodium, or no-salt-added versions of foods.

For more information on heart healthy ideas, contact the Cheyenne County Health Department at 785-332-2381.

Unnatural Acts: A Stone Barrington novel

By Stuart Woods

When a hedge fund billionaire hires Stone Barrington to talk some sense into his wayward son, it seems an easy enough job; no one knows the hidden sins and temptations of the ultra-wealthy better than Stone. But as he and his erstwhile protege, Herbie Fisher, probe deeper into the case — and an old one comes back to haunt him — Stone realizes that even he may have underestimated just how far some people will go to cover up their crimes... and plan new ones.

From Manhattan's mahogany paneled law offices to its modern penthouse lots and dimly lit nightclubs, the trail of entrapment and murder leads to a shocking act that no one could ever have anticipated.
