

Requirements could be problem for farmers

By Karen Krien

Gullies and old silage trenches on farms which are now being filled with trash, old machinery and other items could be the target for cleanup in the near future.

Commissioner Ron Krien had recently attended a meeting where the possibility of cleaning up these farm landfills along with getting rid of old tires could become a reality. The Kansas Department of Health and Environment appears to be moving toward ridding the Kansas prairies of these landfill sites saying they could be breeding grounds for mosquitoes carrying West Nile Virus.

Several years ago, a "fly-over" was conducted in Cheyenne County along with other Kansas counties, to pinpoint where there were old tire piles. At this time, private landfills were also identified.

Cleaning up landfills and getting rid of tires could be a great expense to farmers and the county. There may be grants available to help with the cleanup. Since the county is held responsible for the cleanup, Commissioner Krien said that if the farmer doesn't comply, the county may be forced to go in and clean up the private landfills and pick up the tires. However, the commissioners were concerned at the cost of this type of cleanup. They asked Kevin Berens, county attorney, to see if the law would allow the commissioners to clean up the site and then charge for the service by adding the cost to the tax bill. It was noted that the city of St. Francis is able to make these charges on resident's taxes.

Commissioner Krien felt that these requirements were coming but did not know when. He just wanted residents to be aware of what "might be coming down the pipe."

Commissioner Tim Raile reported that in Colorado, there are rural dumpsters which pick up trash and it may come that Cheyenne County will be looking into a similar solution for helping farmers.

Also at the landfill meeting, Commissioner Krien learned that regulations for extending the landfill site were not as stringent as they once were so advised that the commissioners try to purchase land adjoining the landfill site.

Emergency medical service

Clerk Terry Miller, speaking for Larry Gabel, emergency medical service director, said that, because of recent Health Information Portability and Accountability Act rulings, the commissioners would no longer be able to see those listed in the ambulance's list of write-offs which the county can no longer collect. He also said that Janelle Bowers, ambulance service bookkeeper would be taking over all billing for the service as the personnel in Plainville who was previously doing the billing had gotten behind and, because the bills were turned in late, they were not paid.

The commissioners were concerned as they had been told at a previous meeting that all late billings had been written off and, now they had more in the amount of $7,840. They decided to have the director and bookkeeper come to the next meeting to give more information on the matter.

The commissioners also decided not to sign the write-off list until the next meeting.

IMMANUEL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH held the final open house month on Sunday with the congregation and guests enjoying the beautiful weather. A day for all denominations to come together to share fellowship.

Final event of open house held Sunday

By Peggy Horinek

No one could have asked for more beautiful weather than Immanuel United Methodist Church had as they held "Church In The Park" Sunday for their final event of Open House Month. The congregation and guests brought lawn chairs and enjoyed the service, guitar music, antique cars and at the end of the service everyone released helium balloons into the perfectly blue sky. It was a beautiful sight as we watched the balloons floating gently up and away.

A potluck was held at the shelter house and the tables were filled with delicious food. It wasn't long before everyone was out finding themselves a shady spot for their chairs to watch the ball games.

The first game was played between the Methodists and the Wesleyan Community Church. That game was won by the Methodists with a score of 12-11. The second game was between the Methodists and St. Joseph Catholic Church. The Methodists players were getting a little tired and the Catholics won that game 12-9. The final game was played between the very tired Methodists and the Living Waters Church with that game being won by Living Waters 4-0.

It was a very fun and enjoyable day with a little heckling between the team members and a lot of laughs. A day when all denominations came together to share a beautiful day.

THE SERVICES were conducted by Pastor Doug Mason of the Methodist Church.

'The Breaks' site of annual trail ride

By Karen Krien

The 12th annual Cheyenne County Trail Ride has been set for Sunday and the site for the ride is the scenic terrain of The Breaks north of St. Francis. Horses are to be saddled and ready to ride by 2 p.m. central daylight time.

"What a great way to spend the afternoon—with family, friends, horses and the great outdoors," said Sharon Olofson, adding that people can also donate money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

The ride will take approximately 2.5

to 3 hours and after the ride, the 4-H Horse Club members will be hosting a barbecue.

Signs will be posted to the starting point but for those unfamiliar with the way to The Breaks, there are several sets of directions:

- 1) From U.S. 36, St. Francis, turn north at the Empire Motel onto Benton Street and proceed north 3 miles (to the transformers), around the curve northeast, then north 13 miles. This road is also known as the Park's Road.
- 2) From Benkelman, go 13 miles south on U.S. 34 (to the Mills Hereford Ranch sign), then turn south for 2 miles.

3) From Haigler, travel 8 miles east on U.S. 34 (to the Mills Hereford Ranch sign), then south 2 miles.

In case of inclement weather, the ride will be held one week later.

"A bit of heart and soul goes into each trail ride so come join in the fun," Mrs. Olofson said.

For more information, contact: Gary Cooper, 785-332-2904; Doug Ross, 785-332-2256; Greg Cooper, 785-332-2615; or Mrs. Olofson, 785-332-2248.

Counselor to speak at Monday meeting

Jim Spencer, who ministers on college campuses, will be the speaker for Monday evening's Cheyenne County Kansans for Life meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Immanuel United Methodist Church in Bird City.

Mr. Spencer is a general counsel and business manager for Justice For All. He graduated from the University of Kansas School of Law in 1995 where he was a member of the Law Review and president of the Christian Legal Society's Kansas University chapter. While in school, he taught classes for at-risk freshmen, taught a legal research and writing class, was a finalist for Kansas State University's Rhodes and Marshall Scholarship nominations, and interned with the U.S. Attorney for the District of Kansas and the Sedgwick County District Attorney in Wichita. He is a member of the Kansas Bar Association and the Christian Legal Society.

After passing the Kansas Bar Exam, Mr. Spencer became an advocate for the unborn by joining Justice For All as general counsel and business manager. His heart is to save babies' lives and to minister to people who have been or may become involved with abortion. He advises Justice For All and other pro-life organizations on a variety of legal issues, particularly in the area of First Amendment free speech rights. Mr. Spencer helped to start Choices Medical Clinic in Wichita, one of the few crisis pregnancy medical clinics in the country and located next door to Dr. George Tiller, the infamous late-term abortionist.

He has successfully negotiated with close to 40 universities to allow Justice For All to reach more than 1,000,000 university students since 1997. He travels to campuses nationwide, lectures to and debates with hundreds of students and professors each year, and speaks to churches, organizations, and groups about prenatal development, abortion and other bio-ethical issues, Christian/pro-life apologetics and the ministry and mission of Justice For All.

The mission of Justice For All is to create the debate about abortion on college campuses. College students belong to one of the most at-risk demographics for abortion, but as a whole, abortion is a settled issue in their minds. Therefore, no debate is occurring on the campuses. When Justice For All creates the debate, hearts and minds are changed, and souls and lives are saved.

Justice For All has recently been part of the pro-life educational curriculum at the Focus on the Family Institute in Colorado Springs, Colo., and at Summit Ministries in Manitou Springs, Colo.

Mr. Spencer and his family are members of the Oakley Christian Church. He has been a Christian since he was a young boy. He is married to Traci, and they have a daughter, Anna, age 3, and a son, Corwin, age 2. Traci is a full-time mother with a master's degree in social work.

CHUCK CURFMAN sold the bonds during the commissioners' meeting. The bonds were for the remodeling and addition of the hospital.

Hospital bonds sold Monday

The bonds for remodeling and adding on to the Cheyenne County Hospital were sold Monday during the county commissioners' meeting.

Chuck Curfman with Cooper, Malone, McClain, the bonding company in charge, arrived at 10:30 a.m. to take phone calls concerning the bonds and conduct the sale of the bonds. There were four bids received and, at the close of the sale, he announced that Commerce Bank, Country Club Bank, UMB Bank and Gold Capital Management had submitted bids along with the required $28,000 good faith deposit.

However, Commerce Bank had the winning bid with a true interest rate of 2.260760 percent.

A proposed resolution detailing the bond sale, announcing the interest rate and winning bid was read. Resolution 02-08 was adopted by the commissioners and Commerce Bank was accepted as the low bidder and, if Commerce Bank were not to meet the necessary requirement, the commissioners would accept the next lowest bid.

County health office

Susan Roelfs, county health nurse, gave a report on what has happened in her office in the past quarter. She presented the programs the department is currently operating and the numbers associated with each program.

Nurse Roelfs has been working on a bio-terrorism grant and will be receiving $22,881. She also gave the commissioners a copy of the county's Bio-Terrorism Preparedness and Response Plan and asked about purchasing a two-way radio with 911 funds. The commissioners asked her to talk further with Gary Rogers, emergency preparedness manager, to see if there were any of the county's radios not being used and to report back at another commissioners' meeting.

In other business

In other business:
• Attorney Berens suggested that the commissioners not sign the juvenile center contracts.

• Clerk Miller read a letter from the State Property Valuation stating that the county was in compliance.
• Commissioner Jane Brubaker, who was unable to attend the Monday meeting, wanted the other commissioners to know that she was interested in once again discussing county-wide law enforcement. Commissioner Raile said that he would support the effort but did not have the time to head the research.

• Open enrollment for the county's Corporate Plan Health Insurance as discussed. Currently, employees may not add a family member to the plan once a selection of coverage is made. However, now there are two employees wanting to add their spouses because the spouses' present insurance rate has made a significant jump in cost. The commissioners were concerned that by having an open enrollment, this might cause the insurance rate to cost more. The clerk will look into gaining more information.

• Dave Flemming, county road and bridge supervisor, gave his report. Western Sprinklers was wanting to put an electrical cable under a county road and the commissioners signed a permit allowing the cable to be laid.

• Ranae Pilkington, road and bridge secretary, was selected by the commissioners to attend this year's Leadership Cheyenne County class.

• Mary Morrow, register of deeds, was given permission to attend a Kansas Association of Commissioners meeting in Wichita.
