

St. Francis bull places at state fair in Hutchinson

By Karen Krien

Cody and Matt Raile exhibited the Reserve Grand Champion Gelbvieh Bull for Raile Gelbvieh at the Kansas State Fair held in Hutchinson. DMRS Roll'n Stone 5100R is a September 2005 bull that won his class, was division winner and reserve champion in the open Gelbvieh show.

Cody, 21, and his brother Matt, 14, are the sons of Delbert and Marilyn Raile, farmers and ranchers northwest of St. Francis. Cody has been showing for about 11 years and, while he likes to show, he says Matt is the guy who really enjoys it.

"I think it is good to show our bulls in different places as not everyone gets to our annual sale," Cody said.

Each spring, the Railes hold a Gelbvieh bull sale the third weekend in March at the St. Francis Sale Barn. About 40 bulls are sold and the high selling bull will range from $2,700 to $4,800. Buyers come from as far as Dalhart, Texas, but most are sold within a 100-mile radius.

At the Kansas State Fair, the brothers also showed RHRG Starsky 75S, a spring bull, and RHRG Sugarland 5102R, a fall heifer. Both were class winners in their respective classes and Starsky was also the Reserve Division Junior Bull Class winner. DMRS Santana 43S, a spring heifer, was second in her class.

Obituary

Deloris Emilie Nipps

May 10, 1928 - October 11, 2006

Deloris Emilie Nipps was born to Fred and Bertha (Zuege) Krien on May 10, 1926, in St. Francis, Kan. She died in the early morning hours on Oct. 11 in the Cheyenne County Hospital, St. Francis.

As an only child, Deloris was the center of her parent's lives. When she was born, Fred and Bertha were just starting their painting business and they included her as they worked. One day, she was put in charge of lowering her dad over the edge of the barn while he painted. He had a rope tied around him with the other end of the rope attached to the pickup. Deloris was a little distracted with field mice when Fred told her to hurry up and lower him. She heard the "hurry" and untied the rope from the pickup and he did, indeed, go down in a hurry! Nevertheless, she was still his right-hand painter and fishing buddy.

She went to grade and high school in St. Francis. Friends and cousins who went to school with her described her as "adventurous, fearless and, most of all, fun!"

Darlene Ochsner, who went to school with her, said Deloris was very athletic and it was too bad there were no girl's sports in those days. She could play volleyball and basketball and loved to roller-skate. She told about telling the girls that she could skate between the legs of a very bowlegged teacher. To the horror of the girls, she crouched down and started down the sidewalk. Within only inches of the man, she turned on a dime!

She loved to dance and dancing the jitterbug was her thing. She played the saxophone and was in a sax trio.

Deloris graduated from St. Francis Community High School in 1945. She went on to attend K-State University where she studied Physical Education and was a fan of the Wildcats throughout her life. Granddaughter Crystal was a Jayhawk fan and they had a good time when the two teams played.

On Nov. 26, 1949, she married Leroy "Hookey" Nipps. In 1955, their son Charles William was born.

They lived on the Nipps farm south of Wheeler where they worked together. When Charlie was about 11, he also began helping on the farm.

Deloris and Hookey spent a great deal of time traveling, fishing and boating. Deloris also loved to play golf and she often laughed about the things that happened while she and PeeWee Lauer were playing in tournaments.

Being a grandmother was a highlight of Deloris' life. She loved Isreal, Crystal and Amanda and later, when great-grandchildren, Dakota, Dalton and Blair came along, she was never without a photograph to show anyone who asked about them. Even in her last days, she proudly showed the pictures of Dakota and the twins on their horses and told how well they rode.

Deloris was a caregiver in every way. When her parents entered the Good Samaritan Village, she was there almost every day. About that same time, Hookey was diagnosed with cancer. She was then taking care of him but still finding time to stop by the Village. Through these trying years, she was a bright spot, always finding time to smile, asking how people were and laughing. Her laugh was contagious and people loved to be around her.

After her husband and parents died, she moved to town. She could be found having coffee at K-Store and the Coffee Shop, or eating pancakes at the Windmill, all the while, enjoying the company of everybody she met.

She laughed as she told about taking the car keys away from herself. "I did it before my kids did!" she said.

Deloris had not been feeling well for a couple of months and the family could tell that she was getting worse. On Sept. 4, she entered the hospital for a couple of weeks, then was a resident at the Good Samaritan Village for a short stay, then she was back to the hospital where she died.

She was preceded in death by her parents; husband Hookey; and father-in-law and mother-in-law, Roy and Alma Nipps.

She is survived by son Charlie; grandchildren Isreal Nipps, Crystal L. (Dustin) Hoffman, and Amanda B. Nipps; great-grandchildren Dakota, Dalton and Blair; and many other relatives and friends.

The funeral service was held on Friday, Oct. 13, at the First Christian Church with Rev. John Bartlett officiating.

Honorary pallbearers were Clarence Roberson, Kenneth Roberson, Howard Poulignot, Sparky Nolan, Rick Rogers, Tom Bandel and Eddie Lauer. Casket bearers were Shawn Alsup, Gary Lucas, Rex Murray, Mike Rogers, Chet Gardner and Billy Krien.

Interment was in the Goodland Cemetery, Goodland, Kan.

Knodel Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements.

WHO ARE THEY?? Lorraine Seaman brought this photo in to The Herald to see if anyone could identify the family. She had found it in a pile of old photos belonging to her mother Christina Peter Voorhies. If anyone knows the family name, contact The Herald or Mrs. Seaman.

Guidelines for Replanting Wheat

Some wheat in our area is being replanted due to crusting issues from recent hard rains. Replanting almost always occurs late in the season, so it is important for producers to adjust their normal seeding rates.

Generally, when wheat is planted late, there is reduced root and tiller development, according to Jim Shroyer, K-State crop-production specialist. This subjects the new wheat to wind damage and increases the possibility of winterkill damage. Yields are typically lower when seeding after the optimal range of planting dates. In a seven-year study in southwest Kansas, wheat planted Nov. 1 yielded 23 percent less than wheat planted Oct. 1. Wheat planted Dec. 1 yielded 40 percent less than wheat planted Oct. 1.

Whenever wheat is planted later than the optimal planting date range, the seeding rate needs to be increased to compensate for the lack of tillering and to limit the potential yield loss.

Even with higher seeding rates, grain yields will be lower when planted late than at the optimal date and seeding rate. However, yields won't be as low as they would have been if a lower seeding rate had been used. In other words, by increasing the seeding rate for delayed planting dates, the yield decrease is not as severe. When wheat is planted late and it doesn't emerge until after Jan. 1, generally yields will be only 40 to 60 percent of normal.

In western Kansas, normal seeding rates are 50 to 60 pounds per acre, but after the optimal planting date has passed, the seeding rate should be increased by about 10 to 15 pounds per acre per week, so that by Nov. 1, the seeding rate should be 100 to 120 pounds per acre.

When wheat is no-till planted into row crop stubble, seeding rates are typically increased by 50 percent, even when planted during the first half of the optimal range of dates. When the expected planting date is past the halfway mark of the optimal planting range or later, the seeding rate should be 100 to 120 pounds per acre.

Tuesday Club

Eleven members of the Tuesday Club met at the home of Laura Pugh on Tuesday evening, Oct. 10. They answered roll call by describing their favorite dolls.

President Wanda Gienger conducted the business meeting. Notes were received from Bonnie McQuillen and Wanda Gienger thanking the club for flowers they had received when ill. Members voted to contribute $10 each for a fund for charity instead of having a Christmas gift exchange.

Mrs. Pugh had the program and shared information on the history of dolls. Facts she brought out were that the oldest dolls we stonies with faces painted on them. The first talking dolls were made in 1827 and said "ma" and "pa." Germany is famous for its doll-making industry. Queen Victoria had 132 dolls. The 1893 World Fair had the 1 largest exhibit of dolls ever.

The November meeting will be at the home of Rachael Keller with Wilma Lampe assisting, and Wanda Gienger will have the program.

Life's Lessons

One of life's many lessons...

1. Name the five wealthiest people in the world.
2. Name the last five Heisman trophy winners.
3. Name the last five winners of the Miss America contest.
4. Name ten people who have won the Nobel or Pulitzer prize.
5. Name the last half dozen Academy Award winners for Best Actor and Actress.
6. Name the last decade's worth of World Series Winners.

NOPE!
The point is, none of us remembers the headlines of yesterday. These are no second-rate achievers. They're the best in their fields. But the applause dies. Awards tarnish. Achievements are forgotten. Accolades and certificates are buried with their owners.

Now here's another quiz. See how you do on this one:

1. List a few teachers who aided your journey through school.
2. Name three friends who have helped you through a difficult time.
3. Name five people who have taught you something worthwhile.
4. Think of a few people who have made you feel appreciated and special.
5. Think of five people you enjoy spending time with.
6. Name a half dozen heroes whose stories have inspired you.

Easier? The lesson? The people who make a difference in your life aren't the ones with the most credentials, the most money, or the most awards. They're the ones who care.
