Sing to the Lord

MAXINE NELSON/Colby Free Press

"Aunt Ruth" (Clara Berry) led the children in making a 'joyful noise' at Vacation Bible School at the United Methodist Church. The theme was Veggie Tales. The children earned 'points' by participating, and could spend their 'points' for prizes they wanted.

Couple attend granddaughter's wedding

By LULA THEILER

Rexford correspondent

Rex and Betty Carswell went to McPherson on Friday, June 1, to attend the wedding of their granddaughter, Jaimee Salter and Jason Barta on Saturday, June 2, 2001, in the First United Methodist Church in McPherson. They attended the rehearsal supper Friday evening and the reception and dance on Saturday evening. Jaimee is the daughter of Terry and Steve Salter.

On Saturday, June 2, the town of Rexford was filled with people attending the garage sales. A large sale of donated articles was held in the Rexford Park by the Pride Committee and proceeds will help pay for the July 4th celebration. The Boy Scouts held a food sale in the park and also served noon meals. Several residents held sales at their homes with profitable results.

A baby shower was held at the Barn Sunday afternoon honoring Lyn Cheney. Many lovely gifts were received.

Cleda Moeder attended a party at the Tim and Shelly Moeder residence in Colby Sunday evening to help her granddaughter, Peyton celebrate her first birthday.

Jean Hawkins hosted the Social Hour Club at the Barn Wednesday afternoon with nine present. Roll call was answered with jokes and the minutes were read and approved. Vesta Roth received a birthday gift from her mystery pal. Some games of bingo were played and Vesta received the hostess gift. Sandwiches and vegetables were served with coffee for refreshments. Cleda Moeder will be the hostess on June 20.

Psychic hotline callers advised to hang up

DEAR ABBY: I recently moved to Minneapolis from south Florida, where I had worked as a telephone psychic. The money was great. However, I now live in an area where I actually know my neighbors, and I feel very guilty about my previous line of work.

We "psychics" were really just saleswomen. We convinced callers that we knew something about their future. The callers were both men and women, and they really believed what we fed them. I feel doubly bad remembering how when business was slow, we laughed about the "pathetic losers" who were calling us. Some of them, I know, spent most of their daily wages on those phone calls.

I can't do anything to make up for my past sins, but please, Abby, warn callers of psychic hotlines that they are dealing with people with no more knowledge of the future than they themselves have — probably less.

If they need someone to talk to, they should access the Internet. They'll be dealing with people just like us — but it won't be nearly as costly.

PAM THE SINNER, MINNEAPOLIS

validation or encouragement. I'm pleased you have turned over a new leaf. There's nothing like being inundated with good, solid Midwestern values to help a sinner see the error of her (or his) ways. There is plenty you can do to make up for your past sins. I have a terrific idea for you. Use your talent to save lives. Since you're good on the telephone, sign up for training and volunteer for a crisis hotline. The psychic rewards are phenomenal.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a poem that I wrote for my father. With Father's Day approaching, you might like to share it with your readers. — NATHAN HELLMAN, WHITESTONE, N.Y.

DEAR NATHAN: Your poem touched my heart, and I'm sure it will do the same with my readers as well. Read on:

Dad

They tell you to believe; In your teacher; In your doctor; In the president.

But for me; The one I always believed in; Was my dad.

He was always there for me. With him in my corner, I was invincible. Now he's gone.

They tell me about all the good deeds he did.

But for me; His greatness Isn't captured in words or deed.

It's found in what he meant to me And how I felt; When he was around.
