Football Update

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marty Schottenheimer was hired as coach of the Washington Redskins, returning to the NFL with a team that proved to be an expensive bust this season.

Schottenheimer, who took both of his previous teams to the NFL playoffs, received a four-year, $10 million contract from the Redskins, who finished the season 8-8 and missed the playoffs despite the largest player payroll in NFL history.

He also will be the team's director of football operations.

Schottenheimer coached the Chiefs from 1989-98, compiling a 101-58-1 record.

The 57-year-old Schottenheimer coached the Browns from 1984-88, going 46-31.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs want to hire Dick Vermeil as head coach, but the St. Louis Rams have blocked the deal for now.

The Rams, the team Vermeil led to last year's Super Bowl championship, say the Chiefs have no right to hire him because he is under contract for one more season.
