A special Father-Son night is planned for Friday evening, at Fike Park in downtown Colby. This is a correction from the caption for the picture that appeared in Tuesday night's Free Press, which stated that the Father-Son night would be at the high school practice field.

Former Rockie does his job as D'backs defeat Colorado

PHOENIX (AP) — Quinton McCracken knew what he had to do. Minutes after Juan Uribe's bases-clearing double put Colorado up 5-4, McCracken responded with a two-run double that sent the Arizona Diamondbacks to an 8-5 victory over the Rockies on Tuesday night.

Tony Womack followed with a two-run homer to cap Arizona's four-run comeback to match the four runs the Rockies scored in the top of the eighth.

Arizona closer Byung-hyun Kim blew his fourth save in 30 chances when he gave up Uribe's three-run double.

But Kim (4-1) wound up with the win after working a shaky, but scoreless ninth.

McCracken, who was drafted by Colorado in 1992, came into the game in left field as part of a double switch that also involved Kim entering the game with two out in the eighth. The move paid off handsomely.

"When we bring BK into the game in the eighth inning, we want to, obviously, give ourselves the option to use him in the ninth also," manager Bob Brenly said. "We had to make a double switch somewhere. There really was no logical candidate where we had ended the inning before, but (Luis Gonzalez) had made the last out, and that gave us the most possible hitters before the pitcher's spot would come up again."

Todd Jones (1-2) got the loss after allowing all four Arizona runs on five hits in the eighth. He had not allowed a run or hit in five previous games against the Diamondbacks.

Womack drove in three runs, hitting an RBI single in the fifth and his second homer — his first in 329 at-bats since April 6 — in the eighth.

Mark Grace also homered, and Junior Spivey doubled twice and singled, giving the Diamondbacks a 4-1 lead with his two-run double in the fifth.

High school bull rider from Abilene breaks jaw at rodeo

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A teenage bull rider from Kansas suffered a possible fractured jaw on the first day of the National High School Finals Rodeo.

Zeb Schiffbauer, 19, of Abilene, was injured after he was bucked off and the bull continued to spin and buck on top of him, even as he curled up on the ground. The bull caught the right side of his face with a hoof.

"The bull pulled him down and then camped on him," said the teen's father, Duane Schiffbauer. "It made another spin and he caught a hoof."

Schiffbauer, who was wearing a helmet, escaped and scrambled toward the fence, where he was caught by an arena staff member as he collapsed. He later was taken to San Juan Regional Medical Center.

"I wasted a good bull," said the young Schiffbauer, meaning he missed getting a good score by not staying aboard for the required time.

Dr. Chris Miller, an orthopedic surgeon who travels with the Kansas team, said injuries are part of the sport. Most are bumps, bruises, cuts and scrapes, with some joint injuries and broken bones, he said.

It wasn't Schiffbauer's first injury. He broke his leg once in a bareback bronc event.
