Old Fashioned Games

Seventy-four year old, Michael Valentine is trying to make playing old-fashioned board games fashionable again, and he's trying it at the Oasis of Las Vegas.

The Oasis is the kind of place that would resemble most people's living rooms on a weeknight — four or five decades ago. Three rooms are filled with chairs and tables that support chess, backgammon and checker sets. Visitors can also play old favorites, such as Scrabble, Monopoly, Chinese checkers, dominoes and card games such as canasta, hearts, gin rummy, bridge and cribbage.

In the back room Ping-Pong tables are located. A dart board will soon hang from the wall. Patrons can also play solitaire, pinball or assemble a jigsaw puzzle.

What does this all remind you of? The Senior Progress Center, of course.

Come down for Coffee Time on Friday, Nov. 8, and share the memory of your favorite game.
