Fact: It doesn’t take a brain surgeon to cure a cold.

Being a good consumer of health care helps make it more affordable for everyone.

- Make informed choices of when, how and from whom you receive medical care.

- Ask your doctor to suggest a medical guide you can use to recognize early signs, symptoms and remedies for potential health problems. Consult a doctor when needed.

- Eight out of 10 health problems can be treated at home, so use self-care health remedies whenever appropriate.

- Avoid unnecessary hospitalizations when outpatient services are available.

- Learn if public health centers in your area offer immunizations free of charge or for reduced cost. Share the results with your doctor.

- Schedule the health screening tests recommended for your age, sex and risk group.

Use health care wisely.

Breakthrough medical treatments. State-of-the-art tests and technology. New “wonder” drugs. Today’s remarkable medical advancements are helping Kansans live longer and healthier than ever before. But all this comes at a significant price — rapidly rising health care costs.

Fortunately, there are common sense ways to help control health care costs. Such as using self-care remedies when appropriate. Considering less expensive generic prescriptions. And remembering that the emergency room is for true emergencies.

By making wise choices about your health care, you’ll be part of the cure for high health care costs.
