Bidding Quiz

You have the following hand: [S] K94 [H] Q82 [D] A85 [C] KQJ6 What would you respond if partner opened the bidding with:

- 1. One diamond.
- 2. One spade.
- 3. One notrump (16-18 points).
- 4. Two notrump (22-24 points).

1. Two notrump. This is by far the best way to indicate both your balanced distribution and point count. Although your heart stopper is tenuous, two notrump is nonetheless the standout response because it describes your hand perfectly with one stroke of the brush.

2. Two clubs. Here, with game in spades a distinct possibility, you should reject two notrump, despite its accurate description of your distribution and high-card values. The distinction between this case and the previous one is narrow, but nevertheless real. The difference is that this time your partner has opened the bidding in a major suit rather than a minor.

Major-suit games are much preferred to notrump games when both are viable, so it is best to leave as much space as possible by making the temporizing response of two clubs.

3. Four notrump. This is not Blackwood; it merely invites partner to bid a slam if he has maximum values for his opening notrump bid. If partner has 18 points, he will bid six notrump knowing your raise to four notrump shows 15 or 16 points. If he has 16 points, he will pass, while if he has 17 points, he can bid five notrump and leave the final decision to you.

4. Seven notrump or four clubs. If you play a range of 22 to 24 high-card points for a two-notrump opening and partner can always be trusted to be in that range, you can bid seven notrump straightaway, since your combined point count can't be less than the 37 points required for a grand slam. But if you play a slightly lower range of 21 to 22 points for an opening two notrump, as many now do, your best bet is four clubs — Gerber, asking for aces — since you could be off an ace. If partner shows three aces by responding with four notrump, you should bid seven notrump next.

Note that a direct four-notrump response to two notrump would not be Blackwood, but would instead ask partner to evaluate his point count for the purpose of reaching a small slam, as in the previous problem. One of partner's options in that case would be to pass - certainly the last thing you would want him to do.

Family Circus • Bill Keane

"Billy says now that he's on the honor roll we hafta call him 'Your Honor."

for granted. For example, take this case where South is in four hearts and West leads the K-A-6 of diamonds. East ruffs the third diamond and returns a club to dummy's queen.

Superficially, there seems to be nothing to the rest of the play. Declarer draws trumps and sooner or later takes a spade finesse. Surprisingly, the queen loses to East's king, and South goes down one.

Bad luck, you could say, but the fact is that declarer had a sure thing and failed to cash in on it. Granted that West was much more likely to have the king of spades for his spade overcall than East, South should not have relied solely on that probability.

After winning the club at trick four, declarer should cash the A-K of trumps and A-K of clubs, discarding two spades from dummy. He then runs all his remaining trumps, producing this position as the last trump is led:

North [S] AQ [D] 9 — West [S] J 10 [D] J East [S] K [C] 109— South [S] 63 [H] 8

At this point, South knows that West's last three cards consist of the jack of diamonds and two spades, which might or might not include the king. When the heart eight is led, West is forced to discard a spade, whereupon South discards dummy's nine of diamonds.

When South next leads the spade three and West produces the jack, it becomes folly to attempt a finesse, because West's last card is known to be the jack of diamonds. Declarer therefore goes up with the ace, catches East's king and so makes the contract.

"You'll have to take my word for it. Brussels sprouts don't bounce."
