Antique organ collection open to all

SHARON SPRINGS — Dick Rhea's pump organ collection has a new home on Main Street in Sharon Springs.

The old drugstore building at 117 N. Main Street houses most of his 56 restored antique pump organs, family members said.

Rhea has been a collector of pump organs for many years and was running out of space to store and display them.

He and his wife, Bernice, have traveled throughout the Midwest, including Wyoming, Colorado,

Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico and put over 34,000 miles on his pickup to retrieve these antique organs.

He recently purchased the building and has transformed it into a museum for his restored organs. The organs are all different and unique from one another and were built between 1848 and 1914.

The public is welcome on Sunday afternoons from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Special arrangements to see the organs may be made by calling (785) 852-4951 or (785) 821-1101.

Dick Rhea of Sharon Springs has traveled more than 34,000 miles to find antique organs and now has his collection open to the public in an old drugstore building.

Bill approved to protect child predators, disabled

TOPEKA (AP) — Criminals preying on children will face harsher penalties under a new law signed Monday by Gov. Kathleen Sebelius.

The governor also signed legislation protecting disabled Kansans from abuse in hospitals, mental health centers or group homes, and banning racial profiling by law enforcement officials.

All the new laws go into effect July 1.

The proposals combatting child predators and abuse of the disabled were advocated by Attorney General Phill Kline.

"We have an absolute duty to protect our children and that means putting child predators and child pornographers behind bars," Sebelius said in a statement. "This bill will help law enforcement do just that."

The penalty for indecent solicitation of a child under age 14 was increased, which in many cases would mean prison rather than probation for those convicted of the crime.

Under the new law, prosecutors will be able to charge those possessing child pornography with a crime for each image.
