a week helping Kenneth cut. Even though the 2005 wheat harvest will be history in Logan County when this entry appears in your newspaper, fragments of data keep on going. Family farms are the strength of this area and it appears those families will continue to help feed the world from our bread basket. The Ochs brothers, Gary and Jay, relied on family to help during harvest. Guests and helpers of Gary, Marilyn and Lane Ochs were Aaron and Tracie Betz and Jadelyn of Quinter, Dusty and Stephanie Daniels and Erika of Zurich, Pat Ochs of Bennington, Kevin Ochs of Russell, Chris Selenke of Oakley and Richard and Laura Ausmus of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Third generation farmer, David Gfeller, started training his grandchildren the art of a safe harvest. David and Judy Gfeller's daughter, Staci Hansen, of Marion, helped with harvest. Kirsten and Kourtney helped Grandma Judy run errands and prepare meals. Marcella Overhold is recuperating at her home in Brighton, Colo. after breaking her hip. You could brighten her days with a card sent to Marcella Overholt, 619 Jessup Unit A, Brighton, Colo. 80601. While Bill Weeks of Hoxie was checking on the wheat fields, Pat Weeks spent time visiting her sister, LaVonne Baxter.

Friday overnight and Saturday guests of Evelyn Langdon were Craig and Kelly Hillman, Natasia and Meadow of Goodland. J.R. and Shera Boehme and family of Levant came on Saturday to celebrate an early Fourth of July. Craig and J.R. are Evelyn's grandson.

Jay and Jenaya Dobberstein of Seattle, Wash. were Fourth of July weekend guests of Jean Lowe.

The Triplains communities extend their condolences to the family of Harold "Cowboy" Repshire who passed away July 4.

Around 25-30 Triplains school children have been bussing back and forth to Oakley to participate in the American Red Cross swimming lessons program. The two-week lesson placed children in levels 1-6. Diane Poe, manager of the pool, organized and helped test the students. Pat Haremza drove the school bus and Jana Gfeller sponsored during the ride as part of the summer recreation program.

The Winona Blue Sox baseball team is right in the middle of an exciting schedule playing games in Oakley on Tuesday nights. The boys are doing very well and have had some really exciting games. Players for the Blue Sox include: Eric Rucker, Kyle Gfeller, Seth Smith, Luke Ballentine, Ethan Plummer, Gibson Palmer, Logan Hinkle, Gus Lamb, Joshua Lorenzen, Jerray Nichols and Kalib Hinkle. The boys are coached by Lamar Bersten, assisted by Dennis Gfeller and Aric Grob and the team shirts are sponsored by Winona Feed and Grain.

Animals need sun protection, too

MANHATTAN — Summer is a time of fun...and sun. Most people take precautions to protect their children from the sun's rays, but many pet owners don't realize it is also important to protect their pets from the sun.

Dr. Mary Bagladi-Swanson, assistant professor at Kansas State University's College of Veterinary Medicine, said many pet owners do not consider the sun a threat because of their pet's hair coat. "The hair coat does serve as a barrier, so we don't see sun damage being as much of a problem as we do with people," Bagladi-Swanson said. "But animals that have certain autoimmune conditions that affect the skin; light skin; or thin hair coats are more likely to be harmed by the sun.

"Some areas of the body are lightly haired and lightly pigmented, such as the abdomen and face of dog breeds including bull terriers and Dalmatians and the ears of white cats," she said. "These areas can be prone to damage from ultraviolet light."

Cosmosphere holding shuttle 'launch' party

Cosmosphere to Celebrate Shuttle's Return to Flight with Activities and Live Launch Viewing

HUTCHINSON — In celebration of the first manned space shuttle launch since the Shuttle Columbia accident in Feb., 2003, the Kansas Cosmosphere and Space Center will air the Space Shuttle Discovery launch on a large projection screen in the Discovery classroom at the museum. The public is invited to join the Future Astronaut Training Program campers, from towns across the country, to watch the Shuttle liftoff. NASA has scheduled the launch for Wednesday, July 13, at 2:51 p.m. As part of launch day festivities, visitors can make shuttle gliders, pop rockets, and paper rockets on July 13 from 12:30-3 p.m. in the Cosmosphere's large main lobby.

At 2 p.m. in the Discovery classroom, Joel Walker, director of education, will offer a Return to Flight briefing to answer questions, reinforce the goals of the STS-114 mission, program.
