PATTY DECKER/Colby Free Press

Members of Leadership Thomas County attended this week's Colby City Council meeting as part of their curriculum. Seated in front (left to right) are Ryan Sturdy, director of city recreation; Joletta Cheney, leadership member and Duane Cheney. The leadership group will continue its training next month when members will travel to Topeka, Feb. 22-24, to meet legislators and see how state government operates. Mayor Warren Hixson welcomed and acknowledged class members during the Tuesday meeting.

Midwest Energy grant will benefit children's books

It is never too late. There are some books in life that every person no matter how old is supposed to read. There are always new books coming on to the shelves at the library but there will always be literary classics and then everything else.

In adult fiction we think of timeless books coming from great authors such as John Steinbeck, Ernest Hemingway, Emily Bronte, etc. With respect to adult fiction books, we may be forgiven for not getting them all read. The greater misdeed however, is not getting all of the classic children's books read. If you have never heard of children's authors such as Dr. Seuss, Shel Silverstein, Eric Carle, and Stan Berenstain (just to name a few), well then it is never too late.

No longer will you be able to pick out the classic children's books on the shelves by that old worn out book.

A grant from Midwest Energy has given the library the much needed opportunity to replace some of our worn-out classic children's titles. Here are a few that you should view and when you are old it wouldn't hurt to review them anew. Hey, that rhymes.

And so does Dr. Seuss in The Butter Battle Book.

Can you tell me what it is exactly that divides the "Yooks" and the "Zooks?"

If you can't, then now is the time to read or reread this newly acquired classic and see what the "Butter Battle" is about and who wins between the Yooks and the Zooks.

Don't you hate it when a TV program leaves you hanging at the end of the show with a "to be continued" message? I won't even give you that much. See if you can name the author of this little ditty: "I made an airplane out of stone — I always did like staying home."

How about the book Mike Mulligan and His Steam Shovel? Mike Mulligan claims that his steam shovel can dig in a day what "a hundred men could dig in a week."

But he had never been put to the test until he is called out by Henry B. Swap of Popperville. The bet?

If he can dig the cellar for the new town hall building in a single day he gets paid, otherwise he gets nothing at all. Can he do it?

Who can forget Bedtime for Frances by Russell Hoban? This is a must-read bedtime story for every small child. Most children come to a point in life when things start looking a little scary in the dark just before bedtime.

Frances is a typical child with an overactive imagination. After "badgering" (Frances is a badger) her parents every few minutes about a new fear, her father sends her to bed with a certain disciplinary option that winds the story down to a quick ending.

Last, but certainly not least, many of you probably remember the book The Very Hungry Caterpillar by Eric Carle.

We now have a new copy of another of Carle's books: The Grouchy Ladybug. A ladybug wakes up on the wrong side of the bed and meets another ladybug on a leaf full of aphids. Unwilling to share the aphids, the grouchy ladybug grumbles off and proceeds to pick a fight with every living thing she comes across during the day. Until...

Have a pleasant and ungrouchy week.

Former employee threatened by Rader

WICHITA (AP) — A woman who filed a sex discrimination lawsuit against Dennis Rader says she felt threatened by the man months before he was accused of being the BTK serial killer.

Rader, sentenced to 10 consecutive life terms after pleading guilty in June to killing 10 people between 1974 and 1991 in crimes that terrorized Wichita, was the compliance officer in suburban Park City when the woman worked for him.

The lawsuit Mary Capps filed in November in Sedgwick County District Court was moved last week to U.S. District Court. In it, Capps describes an incident in May 2004, about nine months before Rader's arrest.

The lawsuit said Rader locked the door to Capps' office and "began approaching her."

It said she hit the intercom button on her phone and yelled repeatedly for help from Rader's supervisor, Jack Whitson. By the time Whitson arrived, Rader had returned to his office, the lawsuit said.

Whitson, who is now city administrator for Park City, is also a defendant in the lawsuit.

Susan Selvidge, who represents both Rader and Whitson in the case, said Wednesday that the claim has no merit.

"Capps is just trying to make money from Rader's notoriety," she said.

Selvidge said the area where Capps worked was essentially open to the public and it's possible Rader wanted the door closed so he could have a private conversation.

Whitson said Capps resigned her job as a city compliance officer last summer. Capps claims in the lawsuit that she told Whitson at least weekly that Rader used "abusive, intimidating language and physical gestures."
