Shakespeare Club hears technology presentation

Shakespeare Club met April 28 at the parlor room of Colby United Methodist Church. President Joyce Hansen opened the meeting.

Roll call was answered by "A technology I Love!" Cell phone, fax machine and computer were named, but members also discussed other items that made such a difference in their lives not that many years ago.

Lois VanHorn introduced the program presented by two students from Colby Schools Rachel Lamm and Zach Cardwell who are members of Colby's Technology Student Association and their sponsor, Lamoreaux Fulwider.

This was a delightful and informative program. Colby's technology students have done very well in state competition which consists of technical research and report writing, promotional graphics, giving prepared presentations, transportation modeling with cars and gliders designed on the computer where they must meet certain guidelines and then are involved in racing at the state and national competitions. There are individual and team contests. Next year Colby's technology students will be hosting the state meeting.

Colby will have four state officers — Curtis Fulwider President Courtney Ress Treasurer Jessica Lieker Sergeant at Arms Rachel Lamm Region 5 Rep. At the national meeting pins designed by students from the different states are exchanged. Chelle Shoemaker's design was chosen to represent Kansas.
