A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

There are many deals where declarer tries to shape his play so that a particular defender cannot gain the lead at a critical time. For ex ample, take this case where West leads a spade against three notrump.

When the deal occurred, South won the spade with the king and, since he couldn't make nine tricks without attacking diamonds, next led a diamond toward dummy. West's queen was covered by the king and ace, whereupon East re turned the jack of hearts.

Declarer was now a dead duck regardless of what he did. In practice, he finessed the queen, losing to West's king, and won the next heart with the ace. A diamond was then conceded to the jack, and East cashed three more hearts to score a two-trick set.

South's undoing came at trick two, when he covered West's queen of diamonds with the king. After the queen appeared, South should have re cognized that he could guarantee the contract by playing low from dummy!

If West had the Q-J doubleton, East would have to win the queen with the ace, establishing dummy's remaining diamonds. If West had the A-Q doubleton, the queen would win, but West could not then effectively attack hearts from his side. This would be equally true if West had the A-Q-J.

Finally, if West had the singleton queen, as in the actual case, no harm could come from playing low, but the contract might be lost by playing dummy's king, since this would al low East to take the ace and return a heart before the diamonds were established. Thus, every threat could be defused by withholding the king, rendering the defense helpless. Note that East could not afford to over take the queen with the ace, as this would establish the diamonds.

While it's true that the recommended play would lose a trick if West had the A-Q doubleton, this is of no import. As always, the object is to make the contract, and declarer should take whatever steps are necessary to achieve that goal.

"Is this YOU? Gee, Grandma, what happened?"

Let's Not Get Rambunctious

It might seem that declarer must go down one at three spades doubled, losing three diamonds and two trump tricks. But the fact is that South made the contract, and there was nothing the defenders could do about it after West's club lead.

Declarer took East's queen with the ace, cashed the A-K of hearts and ruffed a heart, establishing dummy's two remaining hearts. He then ruffed a club in dummy and returned the ten of hearts.

It did not matter whether or not East ruffed, because in either case South would score nine tricks. In practice, East ruffed low, South discarded a diamond and East-West later scored two diamonds and the ace of trumps to finish with just four tricks.

Had East discarded a club on the ten of hearts, South would still have discarded a diamond, forcing West to ruff with the ten of spades. Declarer would later finesse against East's queen of spades and again limit himself to four losers to make three spades doubled. West could have justified his doubtful double of three spades with the inspired lead of a low diamond at trick one. Had he made this unusual lead, the defense could have scored three diamond tricks at once and two trump tricks later on to nip the contract by an eyelash.

West's double was a violation of the general principle that you should not double for penalties unless you expect to beat the opposing contract at least two tricks. West had no good reason to expect a twotrick set after his partner opened the bidding but passed at his next opportunity, and he should have subsided peacefully.
