Punctuation, as a rule, is not a concern — thanks to a 1940s English handbook. Nor, is getting someplace on time. The following excerpt taken from The Range Ledger will perhaps bring alight moment to your day as it did mine: Employer: "Okay, Miss, you start tomorrow as my new secretary. Now I hope you thoroughly understand the importance of punctuation." New Secretary: "Oh, yes indeed, Sir. I always get to work on time"

Lions remember holiday storms

closed for the longest period in the history of the road. Colby had a lot of stranded travelers. They all have needs for food and warm places to stay and some have special needs. We have folks traveling with animals, mainly horses and dogs. We have babies, small children and we have people with medical needs. The Rd Cross is there to help with their needs."

Jim Engel said, "When the motels fill up, we turn to the Red Cross for shelter.

I am in contact with the weather bureau and state highway department, so I have a feel of what is likely to happen. We usually use the National Guard Armory for shelter, but last year it was being remodeled so we used the Community Building." Betty requested volunteers in the future to help with the cots, food and entertainment, especially for children. The police department and sheriff's office furnishes 24-hour security for the operation.

In other business, Lion President Hazel Estes reported the annual Christmas party would be hosted by the Gem Lions Club Dec. 2. The pancake feed will be Dec. 2 at the Colby Community from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. The pancake tickets are on sale for $3.50. The Colby Parade of Lights will be Dec. 3. Several Lions had attended the District Council meeting and others attended the Rexford Lions ham and turkey dinner. The next meeting is Nov. 27.
