Things happen for a reason

Editor's note: The following article is the third in a monthly series of 'Heroes of Hope' articles written by area cancer survivors. The purpose of these articles is to raise awareness about cancer while encouraging others to participate in this year's Thomas County Relay for Life event, scheduled Friday, Aug. 17, at Fike Park. For those interested in forming a team or buying a luminary to remember a loved one call Carla Sharp, event chair, at (785) 460-4881.

By Vera Sloan
Cancer Survivor

It was confirmed — I did indeed have the "C" word. The diagnosis was "invasive ductile breast cancer." I had faced malignancies before, but they hadn't hit me like this one did.

Brief flashes from an over active imagination overtook me. And then I realized there is more to life than a feeling of pending doom.

I had a supportive family, supportive friends, a great church family and a fantastic doctor and most important in the equation was a trust that God would get me through whatever came my way, no matter what the outcome might be. The flesh was sick, but the spirit was well and I am blessed.

Was I supposed to attend that meeting for a purpose? I think so.

Thank you Lord for the "boot in the behind," and thank you Sherry for needing to be two places at once.

The surgery and recovery was painful and tedious at times, but over all, went well.

The seven weeks of going to work every morning and then driving to Hays every afternoon to receive radiation was tiring but uncomplicated and went by faster than I had anticipated.

The radiation made me blister and peel, but it didn't last too long, and the only side effect is sore ribs where my rib cage was radiated.

The five years of oral chemo went by faster than I had anticipated too. I've been declared cancer free for three years now.

Thank you, Lord for technology. I've had surgery on my face more times than I can count, but do remember how many stitches there has been — sixty-two in all.

Isort of feel that I am walking living proof that life goes on even though the diagnosis is "malignant." How long I will be able to do that is not up to me.

A huge thanks to all of you who so willingly volunteered to drive me to Hays when it was getting near the end of the radiation treatment and I was getting weary. Loretta, Jennifer, Rosalie, Mike — you were all a God send to me and I am eternally grateful.

Thank you Dr. Kelly for your professional knowledge and compassion.

Thank you Maurice for simply being there for me. And last but not least thank God for letting me find it when I did!

Thanks to every person in this community who gives of their time and finances to support the Relay for Life.

I am honored to be a part of the Thomas County Relay for Life and especially honored to be able to walk the Survivors' Lap.

Each year I cherish being able to walk with those who like me, have a tear in their eye and can't help but wonder why it is me who is still walking and not some of those dear ones who didn't make it through their struggle.

Although I don't understand, I do trust God to be in control.

I am overwhelmed at what is happening with research in the field of cancer, and truly believe that without organizations such as the American Cancer Society and the local support of the many Relay For Life events held across the nation, we would not have the advances we are having with this dreadful disease.

If there is anyone who hasn't taken the opportunity to participate in the annual Relay for Life, I encourage you to take an hour or two out of your day and celebrate with those who are walking the Survivors Lap, and then walk a couple of laps for someone you know who is either struggling to be a survivor, or for someone you know who didn't make it.

You'll not regret it.
God Bless you all.

It's strange how things happen. Then when we look back, it seems that it all happens for a purpose like my discovery of breast cancer.

As I was performing a manicure on a nail client one day in April of 1999, she was telling me about her hectic schedule which included being two places at the same time (one of them being a meeting at the (then) Ramada Inn, presenting a booth for the American Heart Association).

Not knowing what might be expected of me, I volunteered to work at her booth so she could attend to the other part of her schedule which required her to be out of town.

As it turned out, the meeting at the Ramada was sponsored by a health group from Hays and the main topic of discussion was breast cancer.

I listened intently, and when I got home after the meeting, I did a self exam something I was very negligent in doing.

There it was the lump, seemingly small in size, but huge when it comes to "scarey."

The next day, I made an appointment with the doctor and he immediately sent me for a mammogram something I had been putting off for three, yes, three years.

When I got the reading back it was suggested that the spot I'd discovered looked suspicious so my doctor immediately referred me to Dr. Kelly in Hays.

Waiting for the results from the biopsy seemed endless. The phone call finally came, and

Tips offered on door-to-door sales

I was going to discuss how children should handle their elderly parents when they become difficult or the beginning stages of dementia but that was recently discussed in another article.

But some extra things do come to mind, not just how to handle the parent but younger people should think of the same things for themselves. There is always the "what if" for young people too. Later in the year, I will discuss some ideas for the younger generation to think about.

Do phone calls or persons at the door trying to sell you something bother you? Insurance is the one thing that comes to mind. You do not have to buy from these people just to get rid of them. Ask to see their license or permit. Ninety-five percent of those calling on you do not have any type of permit with them.

Ask for their business card and tell them you will check them out, turn around as if you are going to the phone, if they are at your door, and I bet they immediately return to their car and leave.

If a person is trying to sell you insurance, call a local agent and ask if the person or company is legitimate, the agent has the capabilities of finding an answer for you almost immediately, and your local agent can probably offer you the same insurance the salesman may be trying to sell you.

I will be attending the Governor's Conference on Aging on May 2 and May 3. Hopefully I will have new information to pass along to the senior citizens of Thomas County and other counties.

Good news for senior citizens having a problem paying the property taxes on their homestead for the year beginning after Dec. 31, 2007. You will receive more of the property tax back, provided you meet the income and age guidelines.

I will have more of this information available later after the guidelines are available but it does look good. This bill was not a Silver Haired legislative bill but we did support it.

Hopefully the Silver Haired Legislative Omnibus bill for 3 additional Ombudsmen will be approved.

The cost to the state for this bill would only be $150,969 with the federal government kicking in an additional $60,000. This would be very minimal for all the good it would do. The Governor signed the bill to not tax social security for Kansas Income Tax on April 19; this should help a lot of Senior Citizens of the State.

Do you have an item you would like for me to discuss in this article? I would love to do research on anything you would like to hear about. Until next time, stay safe.

As a way to inform older readers about ongoing and changing topics, Rosalie Seemann, secretary of the Northwest Kansas Area Agency on Aging, will answer questions or provide information about the agency on a monthly basis.

Editor's note: Readers may submit questions by writing Seemann at: Chat with Rosalie clo Rosalie Seemann, 426 Hale, Levant, Kan. 67743, or by emailing: rseemann@st-tel.net. The Northwest Kansas Area Agency on Aging is part of a national network of agencies created in 1973 by the Older Americans Act. It is a private, nonprofit organization with the responsibility of administering Older Americans Act programs in the 18 counties of northwest Kansas.

Son's desire for success strengthens

By Dr. Joyce Brothers
Ask Joyce

Dear Dr. Brothers: My son, who recently graduated from college in a field very different from his father's, which was medicine, is now doing what he wants, what he loves. More than anything, he's always wanted to be at the top of whatever he did. Success is extremely important to him ... at this time in his life, it's much more important than girls or anything else. He's centered. This past year, he's had a wonderful job, but now he's had a better offer with a different company. His dad and his uncle both think this is a bad move. He's not one to listen to others, but this is causing pressure in the family. What should I do? — J.G.

Dear J.G.: Nothing. Your son is an adult, and this should be his choice. If it's a mistake, he'll find out and may be able to learn from it. Some recent studies have shown that there's no great advantage to staying with the same company, particularly if the person feels frustrated or that the job isn't using all his talents or potential. Boredom is a negative factor and should be sidestepped whenever possible. Those who achieve the greatest success are those who most enjoy their work. If you like what you're doing, you're much more likely to do it well, and that in itself gives satisfaction.

Dear Dr. Brothers: My younger brother and sister can't seem to accept that our parents are now in their late 70s. They're doing pretty well now, but my mom and my dad both have had some serious and costly health problems, which are likely to continue and perhaps get worse.

None of us is exactly wealthy, and there's a generation of our kids to think about, so somebody has to think about this. My siblings and I are not terribly close, and when and if big hospital or nursing-home bills start, I can see feuds and problems arising.

They seem to think I'm cruel and heartless to even think about the future. I love my parents, as do they, but how do we avoid a fight? — A.R.

Dear A.R.: Why not try to find a reputable financial planner, referred by someone you trust but preferably one whom none of you knows personally in order to minimize any possible feelings of jealousy or favoritism? You're wise to anticipate the revival of ancient rivalries with siblings; this can happen in the best, happiest, most adjusted families.
