This is a logic-based number placement puzzle. The goal is to enter a number, 1-9, in each cell in which each row, column and 3x3 region must contain only one instance of each numeral. The solution to today's Sudoku puzzle is at the bottom of this page.

Age, intimacy changes with age; husband wants compliments

Dear Dr. Brothers: For some reason, in the past — apart from my very early years — I never seemed to have had time to develop really close relationships with other women. I'm thinking of the kind in which you can discuss anything that comes into your mind, including very personal matters about your lover or sex.

In my college days, my boyfriend and my studies took most of my time, and then my career did. Anyway, recently in my mid-40s I have several close women friends, and I'm hearing some interesting info in those intimate sex chats over coffee or cocktails. We all seem to be enjoying our sex lives more in our mid- and late 40s than any of us did in our 20s or 30s. Is this strange? Are we unique in this? - V.C.

Dear V.C.: In my experience, women who have partners in their later years often report they're enjoying sex more than they did in their early years. I've made no survey of this, but we know that in their 20s, hormones in both sexes are very active.

But even in today's society, in Today's puzzle many groups, females are less experienced and less likely to be able to express their particular desires.

The orgasm rates for women frequently increase, and those of males tend to decrease.

Some of this may be due to psychological factors as much as hormonal or physiological matters: It takes much more time for females to feel secure about both their sexuality and their relationships. * **

Dear Dr. Brothers: I'm a 26-yearold guy who's only been married a little more than a month. I'm new at this whole business.

I didn't sign this letter because it's private and I don't want anyone to know that I think I'm missing something — it's not something I'd ever want to talk about with my buddies. I'd like my wife to tell me that I'm good in bed. I'd like some hugs, some warmth, some kisses during
