Thelma Ellen Moore

Thelma Ellen Moore was born the oldest daughter of John S. White and Pearl Chadwick White May 5, 1916 on the family farmstead seven miles south of Colby. Her grandparents, Sam & Gertrude White, were early settlers of Thomas County. She attended country schools in her early years. After graduating from Colby High School in 1934 she married Elmer Moore on August 10, 1935. She was a teacher in the Tully district for one year.

Ellen and Elmer moved to the family farm located in southwest Rawlins County and farmed for 53 years. Four boys were born to this union- Raymond Leroy, James Lee, and twins Robert John and Richard Lynn. After Elmer passed away in 1988, Ellen moved to her home on Smith Drive in Colby but continued to farm until she passed away October 26, 2007. Up until her health failed, she was active with her Sunflower Extension Unit as well as working with her friends in R.S.V.P. doing volunteer work.

Her greatest joy was having her family gather for a meal and, sometimes musical jam sessions. She especially enjoyed watching them play baseball where Elmer enjoyed coaching his grandkids in the sport he loved best.

Ellen was a great seamstress to all her boys as well as daughter-in-laws and grandchildren. She always stopped by with newly sewn clothes for everyone. In her later years she learned to crochet for all of them.

She is survived by Leroy & Eunice, Brewster; Jim & Cheryl, Levant; Bob & Cathy, Greeley, Colorado and Dick & Maybelle, Colby, 11 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents, John & Pearl White, brother Harold White, sister Verna Reiley, and great-grandson Jared James Moore.

Services were held at Harrison Chapel in Colby on October 30, 2007. Burial was in Beulah Cemetery.

Memorials are suggested to the Thomas County Historical Society in Colby.

Tips on a foolproof grocery list

By Heloise

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I used to create a weekly shopping list by jotting down things that I needed. If I was out of something or nearly out, I would add it to the list. Inevitably, I would forget things that I hadn't noticed needed replacing. I had to go back to the store or else wait another week.

Here's what I do now: I made a computerized, alphabetical list of all the products that I regularly use. Using a small font, I print out the list. Then, I go down the list and cross out the things that I do not need. If I'm not sure, I go check my inventory. This way, I don't miss something that I hadn't thought of. I take the list to the store and buy the items that are not crossed out.

I can add items to my list at any time. Of course, I'm free to buy items not on the list, but this method assures me that all the basics are covered.

Jan O'Dell of Front Royal, Va., sent in the following two hints:
Picnic help

For picnicking or snacking away from home, I put a rubber band around the new packages that are taken on picnics so that they can be closed after they are opened.

Medical-only calendar

I lost my mother suddenly when she was involved in an automobile accident. I was living outside of the United States, and although I knew she was under the care of several doctors, I didn't know who they were. She kept a calendar especially for doctor appointments, and luckily my brother and his wife were living close by and knew of the doctors.

My suggestion is that an appointment calendar be kept separate from other calendars, with the business cards of doctors, clinics, hospitals and other important people and/or numbers attached.

Jan, my sympathy for your loss, I know how painful it can be. I have had a spiral-bound notebook for 10 years with cards from all physicians and notes about visits (I take it with me!).

Colby artist contributes to public television auction

Colby artist Marlene Carpenter has donated a hand-painted ostrich egg to the Smoky Hills Public Television Autumn Art Auction, said Tricia Flax, auction coordinator. Smoky Hills Public Television's 2007 Autumn Art Auction, which will benefit the station, is being broadcast live from 6 to 10 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 10-11.

"We are extremely grateful to Marlene and all of the artists and donors who have contributed to this year's auction and for their continued support over the years," Flax said.

"The revenue generated from our art auctions helps Smoky Hills Public Television continue to provide a valuable service to Kansas."

Nearly 100 pieces of art make up the Autumn Art Auction collection, she said. All auction items can be viewed on the station's web site, www.shptv.org. Smoky Hills Public Television serves 70 counties in Kansas and one county in Nebraska.
