Making cookies from a cake mix

By Heloise

Hints from Heloise King Features Syndicate

Dear Heloise: I can't remember how to make cookies from a cake mix. I thought I did not have to write it down, that I would always remember it. Well, guess what? I don't remember it. Please help and reprint this for me.

— Patti Winget, Springfield, Mo. This is one of the most-requested Heloise recipes, and it's time to reprint it. The best part is that you can choose any flavor cake mix — chocolate, strawberry or even pineapple.

1 (18.25 ounces) box cake mix

2 eggs

1/2 cup vegetable oil

Preheat the oven to 350 F. Mix only the ingredients listed above (nothing else) in a large bowl until blended. You can, however, add a handful of raisins, nuts or chocolate chips. Drop the batter by spoonfuls (I use two iced-tea spoons) onto an ungreased cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes or until they turn light brown. Cool and enjoy. Have you ever bought apricots that aren't ripe enough to enjoy? Don't fret — you can ripen them by putting them in a paper grocery bag along with an apple. When gentle pressure is applied and the apricots "give" a little, they are ready to be eaten.

— Heloise

Tasty tidbits

Dear Readers: Speaking of apricots, let's check your apricot hint IQ. What does "apricot" mean in Latin? It translates to "precious," and was named because it is the earliest of the summer fruits. And the fruit has been a favorite edible for more than 4,000 years! Fresh or dried, they are delicious! - Heloise
