College to honor wrestler at tourney

Colby Community College will be honoring its most famous wrestler next weekend when it hosts the first annual Daniel Cormier Open wrestling tournament at the Colby Community Building on Saturday, Nov. 1.

Adults will pay $ 10 to admittance, and students $5.

The tournament will include athletes from two-year and four-year colleges across the Midwest.

While attending Colby College in 1998 and 1999, Cormier won National Junior College Athletic Association championships twice and never lost to a junior college opponent. In 1999, he led the wrestling team to the only Division 1 national championship the college has ever won in any sport. After leaving Colby, Cormier went on to become a Division 1 All-American with Oklahoma State University. He was an eight time national champion and made the U.S. Olympic team twice.

"We are so fortunate to boast that Colby Community College was the launching site for the amazing ... career of Daniel Cormier," said wrestling Coach Steve Lampe.

Cormier will be present for the tournament and will be making a presentation at 6 p.m. at the community building.

"This will be a great event to attend," Lampe said. "Wrestlers of all ages will greatly benefit by listening to Daniel's amazing story."

Cormier will be available for autographs and pictures after he finishes his presentation, said Debbie Schwanke, college public information director.

Schwanke said 210 entrants had already signed up to compete at the open as of Friday.

Eagles take on Vikings without star

The Colby High football team will have a new face behind the center in tonight's game against Smoky Valley.

Sophomore Kale Arnberger will be starting at quarterback for the first time when the Eagles take on the Lindsborg high school at 7 p.m. at Dennen Field.

Arnberger replaced quarterback Heath Stephens in last week's game against Concordia after a vicious hit knocked the senior out of the game in the fourth quarter. Fans were unable to get any real glimpse of Arnberger's ability because he was only able to take a few snaps.

Sager, junior linebacker Stickel, and senior defensive ends Breck Arnberger and Treat Bugbe.

The Eagles have to win or they're out of the playoff picture. Winning will not be an easy task. Stephens was a big part of the team's success. His running ability left defenders grasping for air throughout the season. It would be asking too much of Arnberger to expect him to be as productive on offense as Stephens.

The boys will be going up against a team tonight that has the exact same record as them, 4-3. There's a chance that the game will go down to the wire, but with Stephens on the sidelines, the pendulum may have tilted in the favor of the Vikings. they have to do is find a way to win. The Eagles can't worry about that sort of the thing, though. All
