

College has new scholarship for English and chemistry

The Thomas County Community Foundation has a new scholarship fund to help students in English and chemistry at Colby Community College.

The Coplin and Pickerill Academic Excellence Scholarship Fund is named after Dr. Keith Coplin, a retired English professor at the college, and Dr. Max Pickerill, a former chemistry professor.

It is referred to as an "acorn" fund, meaning it's been "seeded" but is not yet fully endowed. The foundation is asking for donations.

Dr. Coplin began his career at the college in August 1989 teaching English. He received awards for articles, short stories and poems. His first novel, "Crofton's Fire," was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize for fiction in 2005.

Coplin earned a doctorate in contemporary literature from the University of Kansas in 1989.

K. Coplin

M. Pickerill

While at the university, he twice won the Edgar Wolf Award in creative writing. He was a single father, raising three teenagers, when he wrote "Crofton's Fire." Putnam Publishing also has an option to publish his second novel, "Big-Legged Jimmy."

Dr. Pickerill, a Parsons native, earned a master's degree at Fort Hays State University and a doctorate from Louisiana State University. He has taught chemistry for 59 years and began teaching in Colby in 1974.

"Pick," as he is known, has touched thousands of lives, as many area doctors, chiropractors, pharmacists, optometrists, nurses and physician assistants began their careers in his lab. He has received many awards and honors, including those work he did for the National Science Foundation.

He was also selected by NASA to analyze lunar material following the first moon landing and by the Department of Energy to work on alcohol fuel distillation. In recognition of his contribution to education, the speakers series at the college is named for him.

Tax-deductible contributions to this fund may be made by check payable to the Thomas County Community Foundation, 350 S. Range Avenue, Suite 14, Colby, Kan. 67701. Note in the memo section that the donation is for the Coplin/Pickerill Fund.

Debate for Senate seat to air Monday

BUNKER HILL – Smoky Hills Public Television will present a delayed broadcast of the second debate between the candidates for Kansas' U.S. Senate seat, incumbent Sen. Pat Roberts (the Republican) and challenger Jim Slattery (a Democrat) at 8 p.m. Monday.

The station's director of broadcasting, said the debate was held Tuesday in Wichita in conjunction with the annual convention of the Kansas Association of Broadcasters. It was moderated by Eugene Williams, general manager of KTWU, the public television station in Topeka.

"Smoky Hills Public Television is delighted to be able to present this second Roberts-Slattery debate for our viewers throughout central and western Kansas as a part of our 2008 election coverage," Waymaster said.

Smoky Hills ran a taped broadcast of the first debate between Roberts and Slattery back in September. That one was conducted before a live audience at the Kansas State Fair in Hutchinson.

The station offered debates between candidates for state offices earlier this fall as a part of its "Kansas Candidates 2008" series.

Smoky Hills serves 70 counties in Kansas and one in Nebraska.
