Shrinking economy may signal recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that the economy shrank this the summer, the strongest signal yet that a recession may have already begun, a day after the Federal Reserve slashed a key interest rate to battle an economic downturn.

The Commerce Department reported that the gross domestic product, the broadest measure of economic health, fell at an annual rate of 0.3 percent in the July-September period, a significant slowdown after growth of 2.8 percent in the prior quarter.

The spring activity had been boosted by the $168 billion economic stimulus program, but the economy ran into a wall in the summer as the mass mailings of stimulus checks ended and consumer confidence was shaken by the upheavals on global markets. Consumer spending, which accounts for two-thirds of the economy, dropped by the largest amount in 28 years in the third quarter.

The classic definition of a recession is two consecutive quarters of negative GDP. Many analysts believe the GDP will decline in the current October-December period by an even larger amount and they are forecasting a negative GDP figure in the first three months of next year.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported Thursday that applications for unemployment benefits remained at an elevated level last week, another sign of the economy's struggles. The number of laid-off workers filing new claims totaled 479,000, the same as the previous week, disappointing analysts who had expected a small drop.

On Wednesday, the Fed cut the federal funds rate — the interest banks charge each other on overnight loans — by half a percentage point, and the government finally began distributing funds from the billions in the financial rescue package.

Those efforts were part of a concerted drive by officials, just days before a national election, to demonstrate they are moving as quickly as possible to deal with the most serious financial crisis to hit the country since the 1930s.

"Policymakers have their foot to the accelerator and they are using every effort at their disposal to stop the slide in the economy and financial markets," said Mark Zandi, chief economist with Moody's Economy.com. "And it's not a moment too soon given the serious damage that has already been done."

The bleak economic reality appeared to ensure that the euphoria was short-lived.

The National Bureau of Economic Research, which is the official arbiter of recessions in this country, has not said when it will make its determination of whether the country has entered a recession.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported Thursday that ap-

Colby to cover nine counties in northwest Kansas.

Ron Newman, assistant regional director of the office in Hays said the city would have to pay half the expense up to $36,000 to get an outreach center.

Newman said there are several reasons an outreach center would help the city.

"By having an office in Colby, we can provide more accessibility, more counseling and more training," he said.

If a center comes to Colby, the men said, it would be collaborating with the community college.

"We'd give them office space and let them use equipment like copy machines and computers," said Kreider. "They could run an office out of our college."

The group did not agree to any deals during the meeting.

Melinda Olson with the community foundation talked about a plan to build a walking trail around the city. She said the Sunflower Foundation, a group that works to promote health care in Kansas, would be willing to match the amount needed to pay for a trail with a grant of up to $25,000. A walking trail has to meet certain requirements to get foundation money, she said, including:

- Minimum length of 1/4 mile.
- Width at least 5 foot, 6 inches, with 8 foot, 10 inches preferred.
- Public access.
- Trails must be more than side-walks.
- Maintenance provided for a minimum of 10 years.

The group did not decide if anyone wanted to pursue the project.
