

Read a sweet Valentine today

In honor of Valentines Day, I have chosen to write about a few books and ideas that fit that topic. I also want to remind all of you to perform those "Random Acts of Kindness" as encouraged by the Thomas County Community Foundation. I was surprised by such a random act, and the chocolates I received were eaten while writing this Link! Thanks to Sue, Tricia, Orvella and Brock from the Regional Prevention Center!

amongst Trigiani's accomplishments. She will soon be directing the big-screen version of her book, "Big Stone Gap."

A book released under a new name in 2008, is "Be My Valentine," by Debbie Macomber. This paperback contains two previously published romantic stories in one book: "My Funny Valentine," and "My Hero." Dianne, the protagonist (in "My Funny Valentine"), now finds herself back in the single life, against her will. Her children are now urging her to begin to live again. Valentine's Day is approaching and she needs a date for the community center dinner. She dreams of meeting that special someone and being romantically asked to attend with that someone. In between the reality of loneliness, and an imaginative hope is where the story will find the reader. The second book, "My Hero," is about Bailey York (the main character) who needs to find a hero for her romance novel. She struggles discovering that person, but then it happens. She is drawn to him and discovers that the real life hero in her life is her own better-half! The best thing about this book is that it helps you locate the treasures in your own life!

Another new book, just being placed on our shelves for young people is, "Valentine Princess," by Meg Cabot. I just recently discovered that this is part of the Princess Diaries Books Collection. If you have daughters or granddaughters that loved the movies "Princess Diaries" (1 & 2), they will love all twelve of the books about Princess Mia. They are quick, easy to read, and very enjoyable.

Two other books that I want to highlight are: "Hello Cupcake! Irresistible Playful Creations Anyone Can Make," by Karen Track and Alan Richardson, as well as "Little Cakes: From the Whimsical Bakehouse," by Kaye Hansen & Liv Hansen. Both of these books have hundred's of ideas about ways to decorate and create with cupcakes. If you are looking for creativity for Valentines Day or a special occasion, stop by and check-out these two items. In today's economic pressures, cupcakes are a great way to stretch the budget, and still allow yourself that extra special creative touch that is all yours!

Remember to purchase your tickets for the annual Friends of the Library - Murder Mystery Dinner held in the library on March 7. We will have room for around 80 people, so be sure to call the library at 460-4470 reserve your ticket. Set your calendar also for Booked for Lunch on Wednesday, March 4. Author, Nancy Pickard, is reviewing her novel, "Virgin of Small Plains." Lunch is always served, so come and enjoy lunch with us!
