

Conservation innovation object of grant program

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has up to $20 million available for Conservation Innovation Grants in fiscal year 2009 in a national competition designed to stimulate innovative conservation approaches and technologies. "Projects can help keep us at the leading edge of building sustainable communities," said Arlen Lancaster, chief of the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service, in Washington. "This competitive grant program helps us advance environmental goals that also contribute to and protect local economies." Grants can be made for projects up to three years. Competition is open to eligible private organizations and individuals in these categories:

 • Natural Resource Concerns.
 • Technology.
 • Grant Leveraging.
 • Chesapeake Bay Watershed.

The grants are part of the Environmental Quality Incentives Program. Applications must be received by Monday, March 2. For the complete announcement, go to www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/cig/. To apply electronically, visit www.grants.gov/. For information about conservation programs, see www.nrcs.usda.gov, or visit the county office in Colby.

Reception and exhibit will kick off public television fund-raising auction

Smoky Hills Public Television will kick off its 2009 Signature Auction on Sunday, Feb. 22, with the opening reception for its Auction Collection exhibit 2 to 4 p.m. at the Deines Cultural Center in Russell. The collection will be on display through Sunday, March 12. Hours are 12:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The auction will be Friday to Sunday, April 17-19, at The Mall in Hays, with all of the festivities broadcast live. All proceeds go to the station. The theme for this year is "It's a Celebration," said Jayne Heller, Smoky Hills' director of development.

"And that's exactly what we want it to be," Heller added, "a celebration of the best of Kansas." "The auction will feature fine art, folk art, antiques, furniture, jewelry, sports tickets, travel packages, and what we're calling Kansas adventures. We're very excited about it." "The exhibit at the Deines Center is a great opportunity for the public to view many of the items which will be up for sale." Visitors to the exhibit can sign up for an auction bidder number and place pre-auction bids, Heller said. Detailed information, including a photo gallery, on most of the auction items will be available on the station's web site, www.shtv.org.

"The Signature Auction is one of the station's biggest and most popular fund raising events," Heller said. "We want to encourage everyone to visit the exhibit at the Deines Center and get an up-close look at many of the great items...." Following the exhibit, the collection will move to The Mall, where it will be on display from Friday, March 20, through Saturday, April 11. For information, call (800) 337-4788 or (785) 483-6990 or e-mail jsatchell@shtv.org. The Public Television station serves 70 counties in Kansas and one in Nebraska.

Hypertension topic for doctors

Hypertension, or high blood pressure, will be the topic on the next edition of Smoky Hills Public Television's Doctors on Call at 7 p.m. Tuesday and 3:30 p.m. next Sunday, Feb. 22. Panelists will be Dr. Gary Benton, a cardiothoracic surgeon, and Dr. Jeffery Curtis, a cardiovascular disease specialist, both from Hays. The live broadcast on Tuesdays allows viewers to call in and direct their questions to doctors and other medical professionals. For information on Smoky Hills, go to www.shtv.org or call (800) 337-4788 or (785) 483-6990.
