"Casey rode with confidence and performed the best pattern I have seen her ride all year," said Draper. "She was a great representative for CCC and I am so proud of her."

Colby has the only community Daugherty competed against college equestrian team in Kansas. "Casey was selected as the top riders from seven other regions, It has 17 riders who compete in the western and hunt-seat divisions.

Boy Scout development gets boost

After months of planning and fund raising, the Coronado Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, is accepting applications for a newly created position to coordinate its programs in the six counties of northwest Kansas.

The council's executive board created the Six-County Boy Scout Development Fund to provide programs and services to Cheyenne, Logan, Rawlins, Sherman, Thomas and Wallace counties.

Dr. Lynn Kreider, Colby Community College president, serves on the council's board and chaired the task force that developed the fund.

"The initial response from businesses and individuals to support this ... campaign has given us the confidence to begin the hiring process as part of the long-range plan to enhance scouting programs in this area," said Kreider.

The council continues to solicit money for the project, which has a goal of $100,000 over a three-year period. Currently, about $50,000 in pledges have been raised including a $25,000 challenge grant from the Dane G. Hansen Foundation.

Scout Executive Director Stacy Huff describes the project as vital to ensuring that Scouting's tradition in northwest Kansas continues.

"It has become increasingly difficult to attain the quality of program and participation level of youths in rural areas where families and in first grade through high school, at (785) 460-5401.

Melinda Olson, executive director of the Thomas County Community Foundation, talked with with Boy Scout Executive Director Stacy Huff (left) and Colby Community College President Dr. Lynn Kreider about a $1,000 grant to the Scout Development Fund to help hire a coordinator for northwest Kansas.

Huff. "This effort will provide the additional 'boots on the ground' needed to support volunteers in northwest Kansas and sustain the Boy Scouts programs."

Colby Scoutmaster Alan Sager said he is looking forward to the hiring of the new coordinator.

'This is a big step in the right direction for helping the packs and troops in our district," said Sager. "We've needed a coordinator here ... and it's great to see the progress ... toward that goal."

The Boy Scouts describes itself as the largest youth organization in America, offering programs for Cub Scouting and Boy Scouting for boys resources are stretched thin," said and a coed Venturing program for all high-school-age youths. About 300 youth and 100 adult volunteers participate in the six-county area, with additional programs and troops scheduled to be created through the work of the coordinator.

"The college has hosted the Boy Scout Powwow for the past two years," said Kreider. "We are looking forward to having the Scouts and their leaders from across the state attend the Powwow again this August for a three-day event. It's a great venue to get quality young people on our campus and for the Scouts to work on merit badges."
