College and university join to assist health-care students

Statistics provided by the University of Kansas School of Medicine indicate Colby Community College has an unprecedented record of successful applicants.

Sandra McCurdy, associate dean of the school for admissions, came to Colby to discuss a partnership with the college.

"Seven students with ties to Colby Community College applied for admission to the KU School of Medicine last fall," said McCurdy. "Of those seven, six were selected for admission to the program. That is an unprecedented record."

In 2008, she said, the school received over 2,000 applications for 175 slots. The class includes 90 men and 85 women with an average age of 23.

McCurdy met with college

President Dr. Lynn Kreider; Vice President of Student Services Skip Sharp; chemistry instructor Dr. Max Pickerrill; biology instructor Lowell Coon; and math and science Chair John Olson on April 2 to discuss providing additional information to students interested in a career in medicine.

"We want to encourage students who are interested in careers in medicine, nursing and allied health by providing an opportunity for them to meet with representatives from the KU Medical School and CCC next fall at an event on the Colby campus," said McCurdy.

"Students will meet as a combined group for some activities," said McCurdy. "Plans also include smaller-group sessions ... in a particular area." Additional programs may be included in the fall conference, she added.

"We have a large number of prepharmacy students who attend Colby," said President Lynn Kreider. "We are working to include representatives from the KU Pharmacy School."

"We have a really strong pool of applicants," said McCurdy. "One-third of the 2008 class was re-applicants. I believe very strongly in community colleges and the benefits they provide. They are here for all the right reasons — to help students achieve their goals."

"Partnering with KU in this type of effort is a great opportunity," said Dr. Kreider. "We will provide everything we can to assist with the fall event."

College budget on track for year

Chief Financial Officer Alan Waites reported to the Colby Community College board at the April meeting that the college budget is on track for the first nine months of the fiscal year. As of March 31, he said, the college has about 24.4 percent remaining overall (after encumbrances) with a cash balance of $2.4 million.

In addition, he said, most seasonal and start-up expenditures are complete and the May 1 dormitory bond payment is covered.

The 2008-09 approved budget is $11,960,000. Actual expenses through March 31 were $9,044,883. With three months left in the year, the college has $2,915,117 in the budget, he said.

Continuous improvement is next step

The budget process for 2009-10 is under way. Budget managers have worksheets and are preparing to submit proposals. Waites told the board that the emphasis is on revenue. He said he is completing a financial benefit analysis for academic programs similar to the cost/benefit analysis recently done for the athletic department.

Waites said that the college will be challenged to maintain all programs and course offerings after a big cut in state funding. An evaluation of the financial benefit analysis will enable the board to make informed decisions. He will have details, including departmental analysis, at the May meeting.

State operating grant analysis

Waites told the board that the state operating grant for the current year was $3,032,836, or $113.13 per credit hour.

Waites said the college has been told to expect a 12.7 percent cut for next year. The expected state operating grant per credit hour for 2010 is $98.76 for Kansas students. The decrease will result in a reduction of about $380,000 for the college, he said.
