GREG es. Bronze, marble and limestone all require different cleaning methods. Three steps to remember when you're cleaning a gravestone: 1) Pre-wet the surface before you begin. 2) Start from the bottom and work up to prevent the dirty water from further staining the marker.

Heloise

Cleaning tombstones can be very tricky, so you should always call a professional monumentcleaning company if the task looks too hard, or the stones are very old or crumbly. Remember that simply using water and a cloth might do the trick. -- Heloise

P.S.: If there is no running water available, be sure to take several buckets and lots of water! Here are two good hints from Sandra, via fax:

HANDY PLASTIC LID

Use a plastic lid from a coffee container, etc., under a bottle of cooking oil to prevent drips on storage or pantry shelves.

FLAVORED CREAMERS

Use flavored liquid creamers on hot oatmeal cereal. Experiment! Mmmm!

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Heloise: I remember to repack the night light I use in motel rooms by carrying it in a small box, which I leave on the table with my wallet, etc. When I am ready to leave the room, I see the box and retrieve the night light from the vanity. -- Ray D. Quisenberry, Franklin, Tenn. GIFT TAGS

Dear Heloise: When I give a gift to someone and think it might need to be returned (especially with clothes), I cover up the price with narrow sticky notes that come in a dispenser, sort of like tape. I don't have to cut the price tag off. I just peel off the note and make my return. It makes it easier on the store, too. -- Judy Martin, San Antonio

Bidding Quiz

1. Pass. A takeout double shows the values for an opening bid, but the range of strength may extend from roughly 13 points to more than 20. Also, distributional features may range from poor, as in this hand, to very good, as in some of the succeeding hands.

The doubler has an obligation to identify the nature of his hand after partner responds to the double. With minimum values -- 13 to 15 points -- he passes if partner has made a non-jump response. With this hand, therefore, South should 20 not bid again. If he were to continue bidding, he would be implying values in excess of a mini- 22 mum double.

2. Two hearts. The player who responds to the double (in this case, North) may have a very weak hand, since he is merely obeying partner's command that he bid. The doubler therefore has to tread gingerly when deciding what to do next.

Here, South can afford to bid two hearts, not on the basis of his high cards, which are close to minimum, but on the basis of his distribution, which is reasonably good. The four trumps and the singleton club, as well as the strong diamond suit, are trick-taking features that pull the hand out of the minimum class and justify a further bid. The single raise is mildly invitational and shows 16-18 points (including distribution).

3. One notrump. This rebid indicates the high-card values and distribution for an opening notrump bid, plus at least one stopper in the opening bidder's suit.

4. Three hearts. Here you have only 15 highcard points, but the chances of making game with this hand are far better than those in the preceding 18-point hand.

The way to gauge such hands is not by point count but by the probable number of winning tricks. Thus, if partner has as little as five hearts to the queen and the queen of diamonds, there is an excellent prospect of making four hearts. The three-heart bid (highly invitational) asks partner to carry on to game with values of this sort.

5. Four hearts. Here, the chance of making 10 tricks is so good that you bid the game yourself without running the risk of partner's passing a lesser bid. If partner has nothing but five hearts to the jack, there is a reasonable chance of making 10 tricks.
