Smokeout saves money

The Kansas Department of Health and Environment is encouraging people to quit smoking as part of the 34th Annual American Cancer Society Great American Smokeout on Thursday.

"Quitting smoking is not easy, but it's something that may save your life, or maybe even the life of a loved one," said Roderick L. Bremby, Secretary of the department. "Along with many health benefits, stopping tobacco use will also benefit your wallet."

A person who smokes a pack a day spends approximately $35 per week on cigarettes, $150 a month and more than $18,000 during 10 years. Smokers can calculate individual costs by visiting www.kdheks.gov/tobacco and selecting the American Cancer Society's Tobacco Calculator.

When Kansans are ready to quit smoking, the Kansas Tobacco Quitline (800) QUIT-NOW (784-8669) is ready to help. The Quitline is a no cost service available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. A counselor works with the caller to prepare for a quit date and create a plan to fight cravings. Follow-up calls are arranged around participants' schedules. Studies find that using a Quitline can more than double a person's chances of successfully quitting tobacco.

Information about the Great American Smokeout can be found at www.greatamericansmokeout.org.
