the school funding situation in Kansas. There are many projections on how big the state budget shortfall will be next year, she said. One legislative study predicts a deficit of $320.9 million, necessitating a cut of about $203 million from education. Harrison said this would mean about $305 per student cut from base state aid.

The Kansas Association of School Boards is projecting a deficit of $358.7 million and $274 cut from base aid. Harrison said either one would amount to $450,000 to $500,000 dollars cut from the Colby district.

Harrison said the administration will start meeting with staff, teachers and students in January to get ideas on further cuts and then bring recommendations to the board in February. The legislature will begin its 2010 session on Jan. 11.

"We're going to get prepared," Harrison said. "We're going to be ready just like last year."

• Activities Director Larry Gabel said the Eagle Invitational wrestling tournament the previous weekend had gone well. Gabel said he appreciated all the volunteers and the residents who came out to watch the matches. The Colby team placed second at the tournament.

• Krebs said three students have been chosen for the Kansas Honor Choir, Gray Henry, Brock Wagoner and Jake Rose.

• The principal said a new Academic Hall of Fame case is being built for the high school by math and biology teacher Gordon Rasmussen. The wood-and-glass case will be near the entrance, by the auditorium doors. It will house previous years' honor rolls, and other academic honors earned by Colby High students.

Krebs said the school's National Honor Society chapter came up with the idea and is paying for it.

"Our walls are full of athletic achievements," Krebs said. "We thought we should recognize as many academic achievements as we can."

Curriculum Director Diana Wieland said Thomas County Academy students have postponed their third tea party until January. The party, part of the "Three Cups of Tea" project, had been scheduled for this week. Academy members plan to serve tea to other Colby Middle School students three times during the year, talking with them about different subjects each time. In January, the students will discuss people who have influenced their lives.

Wieland said the students postponed the event so that it wouldn't interfere with end-of-semester projects.

• Wieland said she had been asked by the state Department of Education curriculum director to participate in the Professional Development Task Force, which examines how teachers continue their education and improve their skills. Wieland said she hopes to participate virtually, instead of driving to task force meetings in eastern Kansas.

· Harrison suggested the board look into creating a five-year capital outlay plan, which would include any foreseeable maintenance and construction needs on all of the district's buildings. The plan would be useful in case the school board votes to start a special levy for capital projects, since people would know exactly what the money would be used for.

Harrison said that Kent Stewart, an education administration professor at Kansas State University, puts together this type of plan for school districts for a small fee.

The board did not take any action on the issue at the meeting.

• The board voted to extend Harrison's contract as superintendent to June, 2012 with little discussion.

knowledged Wednesday that he would have difficulty defeating Brownback, a three-term senator who is expected to run an aggressive and well-funded campaign.

Brownback's campaign had raised as an issue a securitiesfraud lawsuit in California in which Wiggans was a defendant.

Wiggans and others settled the case in October for nearly $12.8 million, plus interest, though they weren't required to acknowledge any wrongdoing. But the lawsuit had led Brownback's campaign manager to label Wiggans "a fraud."

Kansas Senate Minority Leader Anthony Hensley, a Topeka Democrat, said he was disappointed by Wiggans' decision and criticized Brownback for his campaign's attacks on Wiggans over the lawsuit and his long absence from Kansas.

though, said it was not a factor message.

The lawsuit, filed in 2006 by stockholders of Palo Alto, Calif.-based Connetics Corp., alleged that the company, Wiggans and other executives hid problems with an acne-fighting gel the firm was developing as a major product. Wiggans had been chief executive and chairman, and the lawsuit accused the company of having "a culture of deceit."

The defendants denied the allegations. Wiggans and some fellow Democrats said such litigation is common in business. On Dec. 4, a day after the first news reports in Kansas about the lawsuit, Wooden said Wiggans was "100 percent committed" to the governor's race.

But in an e-mail to supporters Wednesday, Wiggans said: "I have spent much of my business career away from home and thus am unknown to many voters and donors."

An early version of the e-mail Brownback's aides have ar- appeared to drive home that gued that the federal lawsuit point: Wiggans' last name was was a serious issue. Wooden, misspelled at the close of the

The old minutes indicate they cared about their comrades, because they approved sending flowers to anyone in the club who was ill. A motion was approved that the cost of the flowers could not exceed 25 cents, but it wasn't long until that was amended to 30 cents.

Many people probably still remember some of the early members, or at least recall the names of these women, including Veda Witt, Cleo Fitzgerald, Estelle Lundgren, Betty Corbin, Alice Kohfield, Dorothy Lauterbach, Florence Murray, Elsie and Muriel Sears, Mel SeCoy, Vera Penfield Griffin, Dot Rhoades and Elizabeth Mosier.

It has been the club's tradition the last few years to have an annual Christmas Coffee with tables loaded with homemade goodies. Invitations are still sent, and donations are accepted to help the group's charitable projects.

League member Sandy Harper said figures for this year's benefit, held Dec. 3, are not yet final. She said the group will wait until spring to decide how to spend the money.
