"We say thank you to all the said. work that went into this, and we do appreciate it," said Phillips, facility east of Hays.'

Maxine Houston Higerd Neville spent her entire life in Thomas County, living near Gem and in Colby, said Kathy Higerd, wife of trustee Larry Higerd, and became a pioneer among women farmers in an era when a woman's place wasn't on a tractor.

Consolidated School in 1932. In 1939, she married the love of her life, Carl "Dutch" Higerd. They lived in Gem until World War II England and France.

During his absence, she worked at the war rationing office in Colby. After his return, the couple continued to live near Gem.

With the help of his brother, the young couple got into farming. Dutch died in 1961, and though it wasn't socially acceptable at the time for a woman to farm, Kathy said, she took over, tilling her own

In the fall of 1961, when it was time to plant wheat, her nephew Larry was ready to head off to college. She asked him to plant her wheat before he left, and that was the beginning of a working relationship that lasted for 48 years.

In the 1960s, it was not unusual to see her in the field working summer fallow on a tractor with no cab. She would drive while Larry ate his lunch because if the sun was shining, and there were ing the benefits of her hard work weeds in the field, then the tractor could not stop!

Maxine understood the hard work involved in making a liv- manage that which has been given ing on the farm. She worked hard to you.'

herself and was frugal in all of her business and management decisions. She loved sitting at the side of the field to watch as the combines harvested her wheat, Kathy

In 1963, she married Dwight Neville, a widower who had been "and we invite you to stop by the a pastor in Gem. They lived in Gem until his death in 1966, but she kept working on the farm.

One day in 1998, at the age of 84, she was seen driving a big four-wheel-drive tractor, and the next day she fell and broke her hip. That brought an end to her tractor-driving days.

Maxine was the youngest of six She graduated from the Gem children, Kathy said, and family was a strong element in her life. Being the youngest, she promised her oldest sister Twila that on her death, she would take Twila's inbegan. Then he said farewell to valid son, Bob Harrison, into her his wife and went off to serve in home. She cared for him for eight

Even at the age of 94, she enjoyed a ride into the country to look at her wheat crop, Kathy said. She died Sept. 8, 2008.

"She lived only seven months after the death of her nephew," Kathy said, "and I think she was just tired and worn out.'

Kathy remembers many times when Maxine would talk about the early days of hardships, and the times when she and Dutch were young and "didn't have two nickels to rub together." She talked about living through the Depression, and how they saved because they didn't know what tomorrow would bring.

"Because of the way she lived her life through the years, taking care of family and living comfortably, but not extravagantly, these institutions are now receivand frugality," Kathy Higerd said. 'Therefore, Larry and I exhort you to be wise as you accept and

County celebrates 125th Anniversary

Thomas County's 125th birthday isn't until next October, but that didn't stop county residents from starting the party.

The anniversary committee held a theme and logo contest. The winning theme, "The Spirit of the Prairie Lives On," was submitted by Mark Thomas, and the winning logo was drawn by Pat Turrell. Both were announced at a kickoff event at the Prairie Museum of Art and History in October.

Because it is not a 100th or 150th anniversary, the committee decided to incorporate the theme into many existing events, such as the annual Christmas parade, which this year reflected, "The Spirit of Christmas on the Plains.'

A series of such events is planned for 2010, plus the museum will host the last Kansas Chatauqua and a Smithsonian Museum traveling exhibit.

Swine flu grips nation, county 2009 introduced the world

The new strain, mutated from several different animal flu viruses, cause numerous deaths, including some in Kansas.

The new bug reached Kansas in late April and Thomas County in July. Three confirmed cases were reported on July 9, and the number rose to 10 by August.

Later in the year, the first vaccines were delivered, but in such low amounts that only health-care workers, especially those in direct contact with patients, were able to get the shot. In December, more vaccine was made available, and the Thomas County Health Department held clinics for the public and for area schools.

Health officials were predicting the H1N1 virus will become one of the many seasonal strains that pops up every flu season.

New, expanding businesses in town

2009 was a good year for businesses. Several prominent businesses shifted to new and bigger locations by I-70, including the old truck bays at city hall for Colby resident Pat Turrell designed this logo for Thomas County's 125th Anniversary celebration.

Colby Ag Center, Colby Imple- storage. ment, Beringer Hardware and J and B Meat Market.

Taylor Motors celebrated 10 to Colby Dodge, a new parts store and a big open house in October. The town also got several new businesses. The Thunder Chord guitar shop opened at Southwind Plaza in October. A Budweiser distributer decided to close its Norton and Goodland locations to set up shop in Colby. A new sandwich shop opened in downtown, to the H1N1, or swine flu, virus. started by a 19-year-old Golden Plains High School graduate.

> Two new hotels are under construction near the freeway, a Hampton Inn and a Sleep Inn, both set to be completed next year.

New fire station completed The new Colby Fire Sta-Otion, which began construction last year, threw open its doors

In 2006, a heavy snow collapsed the roof of the old fire station, which had been attached to City Hall, forcing the department to find temporary quarters in the National Guard Armory.

The department moved into their new station in Country Club Drive in April. The 17,000-squarefoot structure cost about $2.5 million, but it could last for as long as 75 years with room to grow. Fire Chief Bob McLemore said the new location gives better access to I-70, where many of the department's emergency calls come

Colby couple gets license plates OK'd

Two Colby citizens, Franyears in Colby with a name change cis and Geri Landry, were instrumental in getting a bill through the Legislature that allows people to buy Kansas license plates with "In God We Trust" on them.

The state House of Representatives passed the bill in 2008, but it wasn't until this year that it made its way to the Senate. Senators passed the bill in March. Both Sen. Ralph Ostmeyer and Rep. Jim Morrison supported the bill.

Francis and John Bremenkamp designed the new tag, which became available in July.

New officials elected Colby voters elected J four City Council members in April. Raymond "Omar" Weber won a close race against incumbent Phil DeYoung, who had decided to retire, then changed his mind, in Ward 1.

Councilmen Mark Beringer and Tim Hutfles were re-elected from Wards 3 and 4. New member Dave Voss was elected in Ward 2. All three were running unopposed.

Voters also re-elected Kenton Krehbiel and Cindy Black and selected newcomer Bill Shields to the Colby Community College board.

First-time candidate Susan Mc-Lemore won a seat on the Colby School Board, joining returning candidates Tracy Rogers and Janice Frahm. Ed Geishler was later selected by the board to fill a va-
